R. F. C. Loans Open Cotton Sale to Soviet

60,000 to 80,000 Bales Will Be Exported Under Plan.

Opens Field for Shipping Other Goods; Seen as Recognition Step.

(Associated Press.)

Arrangement for a series of loans to American exporters with which to finance the sale of between 60,000 and 80,000 bales of cotton for shipment to Russia was announced last night by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Opening up a field of negotiation for shipments of a range of other commodities to the huge Soviet nation, the Reconstruction Corporation's announcement last night constituted the first such move by the American Government since the U. S. S. R. came into its present power.

Formal disclosure of the action followed close upon a conference in London between Assistant Secretary Raymond Moley, of the State Department, and Maxim Litvinoff, foreign commissar for Soviet Russia. The advices from abroad had labeled the deal as virtually closed.

Amtorg to Give Notes.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, announced the loans to American exporters would be secured by the notes of the Amtorg Trading Co., commercial representative of the Soviet state in America. Furthermore, Jones said, they would be "unconditionally guaranteed by the State Bank of U. S. S. R." The loans will be for one year at an interest rate of 5 per cent.

"The Amtorg Trading Co.," Jones said, "will pay 30 per cent of the purchase price in cash at the time of shipment and expects to ship a large part of the cotton in the month of July."

Although no formal statement was made, it was stated reliably last night that negotiations already are in progress between officials of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and representatives of the Soviet for the shipment to Russia of a number of other raw materials. What products will be included was not discosed, but it was said reliably that there had been no move launched to date to include the shipment of wheat to Russia under this method.

Approved by Roosevelt.

Jones took special pains to make clear that both President Roosevelt and Secretary Woodin had approved the procedure, revising his statement as first written to bring out this point.

Officials gave no word as to the price Russia would pay for the cotton, but in the absence of any statement to the contrary it was assumed that the market price would rule.

The loans to exporters who will handle the cotton shipments were

New Plane Record Set by Actor, 17

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Alfred K. Hall, jr., 17-year-old Brooklyn vaudeville actor, claimed a new junior altitude record today in a flight over Floyd Bennett Field, during which he said his altimeter registered 16,800 feet.

A barograph in the plane, sealed before the flight by National Aeronautics Association representatives, will be sent to Washington for an official reading. At the field it was said the barograph showed an altitude of more than 15,000 feet.

The record has been held by Paul Clough, who climbed in a tiny monoplane to 10,575 feet over Roosevelt Field on October 26, 1930.

Accord Today Over Currency Viewed Likely

Crisis Eased as MacDonald Confides Hull's Plan to Delegates.

London, July 2 (U.P.).—Belief that the currency crisis of the World Economic Conference has been passed successfully prevailed late tonight after Secretary of State Cordell Hull, chairman of the United States delegation, gave the gold bloc nations the main points of the United States' monetary policy in advance of a public statement tomorrow.

President Roosevelt's rejection of the plan to permit central banks to cooperate to end ruinous speculation in currencies resulted in an afternoon and night of fevered activity with unbroken conferences in No. 10 Downing street and the hotel rooms of delegates.

Advance information on the United States plan was conveyed to the gold bloc representatives by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald for Hull.

Georges Bonnet, finance minister and chairman of the delegation for France, leader of the gold bloc, appeared unusually optimistic when the gold representatives ended a conference shortly before midnight.

"I expect to see the whole matter settled by tomorrow noon," he said.

The gold nations again did their utmost to induce Britain to join in a declaration on currency stabilization without the United States, but MacDonald, remaining firm, pointed out that he was unwilling to join without concurrence of the United States.

However, it was intimated that he was willing to consider the possibility of a separate and simultaneous, although nonidentical, statement for Britain. It was believed the idea was first broached to Hull this afternoon, and that he agreed it would not be antagonistic to the new policy he is preparing to reveal tomorrow.

MacDonald and Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, then informed the gold bloc, it was said, which found it equally acceptable, regarding it as strengthening their own arguments without leaving Britain open to a charge of partisanship.

7 Japanese Soldiers Killed by Hard Tests

Tokyo (Monday) July 3 (A.P.).—Seven soldiers died, 30 were dangerously prostrated and more than a hundred others sent to hospitals over the week-end—victims of the Japanese army's customarily severe training methods in the most rigorous weather.

They were felled during maneuvers of the First Division on the plains at the foot of Mount Fuji in temperature of 90 degrees Fahrenheit, accompanied by high humidity.

Three Passengers Die In Ohio Bus Accident

Mount Vernon, Ohio, July 2 (U. P.).—Three persons were killed in a bus accident near here today.

Arthur Bankhardt, 24, Ohio University student from Cleveland, was one of those killed. The other two, a man and a woman, were unidentified. Ten of the 36 passengers were taken to a hospital seriously injured.

Mary Pickford And Fairbanks May Separate

Star Announces Action Is Contemplated and Home Will Be Sold.

Los Angeles, July 2 (A.P.).—A separation is contemplated between Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, and "Pickfair," the beautiful home in Beverly Hills bought by Fairbanks is for sale, Miss Pickford said today.

"Our home, 'Pickfair,' is for sale," the actress said. "A separation between Douglas and me is contemplated. If there should be a divorce, the grounds will be incompatibility. Beyond that, there is nothing further to say."

Fairbanks has spent much of his time in late years traveling and at present is in London. The extended separations of the couple, together with several efforts that have been made to sell their residence, which is owned by Fairbanks, gave rise to frequent rumors of an impending divorce, but all have been denied.

The couple was married in 1920.

The Pickford-Fairbanks marriage long was considered Hollywood's ideal one. Millions all over the world acclaimed them professionally and personally. When traveling, they were the guests of foreign rulers and titled families and many of these same people were their guests at Pickfair.

Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks are listed as the second and third wealthiest of Hollywood's film celebrities.

Latest available assessments by County Assessor Edwin W. Hopkins, those for 1932, placed Charles Chaplin as the wealthiest, with stocks and bonds valued at $7,687,570.

He showed Miss Pickford to have stocks worth $2,316,940, foreign trusts of $176,190 and real estate of $192,260.

Fairbanks had stocks valued at $1,384,690, foreign trusts at $236,760 and real estate at $75,480, besides Pickfair, his home, listed at $70,170.

Consulate Is Stoned By Irate Bulgarians

Buenos Aires, July 2 (A.P.).—A score of infuriated Bulgarians stoned the Bulgarian Consulate in Buenos Aires today in protest against the present Bulgarian government.

The demonstrators fired revolvers when police arrived to reestablish order and one person was injured.

Hermit Murdered In Lonely Retreat

Westboro, Mass., July 2 (A.P.). Winn Ward, 60-year-old hermit, poultryman and truck gardener, who lived alone in a ramshackle hut with a metal door and barred windows, was found dead today on the floor of the shack, apparently slain.

Ward's body was discovered by James Kaiser. The hermit's feet had been bound with rope and he was stretched on the floor, feet toward the door, which was slightly ajar. Outside a large watch dog was chained to a doghouse, just out of reach of the door.

Ward, regarded locally as an eccentric character, wore his hair and beard long and was said by townspeople to have had a fondness for displaying large rolls of currency.

Factor Is Held For $75,000 By Kidnapers

Son, 19, Directing Hunt, Says Man Demanded Small Bills.

Youth, Recent Kidnap Victim, Says Sum Can't Be Raised.

Chicago, July 2 (A.P.).—Jerome Factor, 19-year-old son of kidnaped John Factor, stock market plunger, tonight revealed he received a telephone call purporting to come from the abductors demanding $75,000 ransom in "small bills."

Jerome, himself a victim of kidnapers ten weeks ago and now directing the search for his father, abducted early Saturday, said he received the call earlier today at his home on Lunt avenue, on the North Side.

"Is this Jerome Factor?" a voice demanded.

"Yes," he said.

"Have $75,000 in small bills ready the first thing in the morning," the voice said. "We will get in touch with you again. Hurry up."

Young Factor tried to find out who was calling but the man hung up. Jerome said two other calls had come in to his apartment but that when the caller discovered he was not there he refused to talk with anyone else. Jerome regarded the call as coming from the abductors.

Jerome decided to make the call public, he said, so that the newspapers could cooperate with him and inform the kidnapers the family could not possibly raise such a sum as demanded.

Jerome's statement came shortly after G. Gale Gilbert, one of Factor's attorneys, said that Factor's fortune was greatly depleted.

Steamer Grounded To Avoid Collision

St. Johns, Newfoundland, July 2 (A.P.).—The Walmar Steamship Co's 4,542-ton steamer Marsland ran aground at Point Amherst today after swerving from her course to avoid a schooner at the entrance of the harbor.

The steamer Arrsa and a tug attempted to dislodge her but found her hard and fast on the point. Late this afternoon she was taking water in two holds.

The Marsland was inward-bound with a cargo of salt from Cadiz when the mishap occurred. Although the weather was fine the sea was rough after last night's gale.

Kansas Financier Kills Self; Illness Is Blamed

Chanute, Kans., July 2 (A.P.).—Neil S. Jones, president of the Bank of Commerce here and owner of extensive real estate holdings in Neosho County, killed himself today with a .38-caliber revolver. He was 54 years old.

Business associates said ill health, from which Mr. Jones had suffered several years, undoubtedly prompted the act.

47 Knots Are Tied At Mass Marriages

Berlin, July 2 (U.P.).—Residents in the East End of Berlin witnessed an unprecedented series of mass weddings today when 47 storm troopers and their brides marched to the Evangelical Lazarus Church.

Only two of the couples were newlyweds, the other 45 seeking church blessings on marriages concluded only before a registrar in civil rites.

The ceremonies today lasted more than an hour. The space in front of the altar permitted only five marriages at a time.

Potomac Valley Cloudburst Creates Widespread Havoc; Bolt Strikes Police Station

Freak Lightning Stops Lights and Teletype at Headquarters.

Home in Alexandria Hit; Mercury Here Quickly Falls 18 Degrees.

An 18-degree drop in temperature followed the thunderstorm which descended from a green cast sky yesterday and damaged Washington Police Headquarters and a home in Alexandria as lightning flashes struck in and around Washington. The rainfall prior to 8 p. m., amounted to .82 of an inch.

Traffic returning from the beaches was slowed up but no serious accidents were reported on the roads. A lightning bolt struck the home of Dr. John T. Ashton, 404 Russel road, Alexandria, while all members of the house were away. The bolt struck the chimney and set fire to the house, causing damage estimated in excess of $1,800.

A freak lightning bolt circled through Police Headquarters, putting lights and teletype machines out of order. The bolt was seen to descend in the rear of the building and evidently was picked up by an electric wire and carried through the structure.

Bolt Near Officer.

Lieut. Clarence Talley described the flash as first appearing near his desk at the Detective Bureau. A sudden sputtering of wires followed and several sparks flew around the room. No one was injured.

Lightning set fire to a barn near Oakton, Fairfax County, Va., destroying the building and recently harvested hay and grain. George B. Cockerille, owner of the barn, estimated the damage at $2,000. The Fairfax and Vienna fire departments extinguished the blaze.

The storm here was part of a downpour in the low pressure area along the northeast coast. A high temperature of 88 degrees was recorded prior to the descent of the rain. The temperature dropped slowly as the storm continued and at 5:50 p. m., when the rain ceased, it was 70 degrees.

Other bolts of lightning were seen in the vicinity of the airport pool where bathers saw a huge bolt strike the river near the pool. At E and H streets northeast a bolt was seen to hit the car track, causing a number of sparks.

Many Hurt as Chicago Is Buffeted by Storm

Damage Estimated at $1,000,000 as 57-Mile Wind Uproots Trees and Tears Down Power Lines; More Than Score Injured.

Chicago, July 2 (A.P.).—A freak storm of less than 17 minutes duration, sweeping into Chicago from the Great Lakes, wrought damage estimated at $1,000,000 and caused injury to more than a score of persons today.

A 57-mile an hour wind, which Weather Bureau officials said had its origin in the Hudson Bay district, whirled about the saucer edge of the Lake Michigan shore, tearing roofs from buildings, uprooting trees and snapping off power lines before heading out over the water again.

The worst effect of the storm was felt in the Elgin and St. Charles regions. Forty cottages were wrecked and 50 more were unroofed there. Four women occupants, trapped when the shelters collapsed, were removed to a hospital painfully injured.

A resident of suburban Aurora suffered several fractured ribs when an uprooted tree fell across his automobile.

A three-story building at Elgin was damaged and a watchman was injured. One hangar at the Elgin airport was lifted by the wind and carried several hundred feet. Three planes were destroyed. A grandstand and two pylons were demolished at the Chicago airport, where the American air races are being conducted, forcing postponement of the event.

Building at the Century of Progress Exposition Ground stood the test well although in one place a part of the wall of the Travel and Transport Building gave way and many windows were smashed. The big tent of the 101 Ranch collapsed, injuring a watchman.

Germans Held As Pirates and Slayers of 12

Dairen, Manchuria, July 2 (A.P.). One of the most amazing cases of piracy in the China seas in many years—the usual roles reversed, with whites preying on Chinese—was disclosed today with the capture in a Dairen dive of three Germans.

Japanese police say the leader confessed that the trio and two others captured later in the hills west of Dairen, seized the Shengan, a [illegible] Chinese steamer, and slew [illegible] Russians, including a woman, and seven Chinese who were on board.

Hurricane Hits Western Cuba; Damage Heavy

Havana, Cuba, July 2 (U.P.).—A hurricane struck Pinar Del Rio, Cuba's most westerly province, shortly before midnight.

The southern coast town of Coloma, 24 kilometers south of the city of Pinar Del Rio, was reported to have been swept by a tidal wave. Casualties there were believed heavy, but it was impossible to get details because communications were disrupted.

Houses were destroyed and the lower part of Pinar Del Rio completely inundated. The electricity was cut off to prevent short circuits.

Several persons were injured and treated at first-aid stations established throughout the city, which had had several hours warning of the impending hurricane.

The low country of the province was inundated when rivers overflowed.

Weather officials reported that the vortex of the hurricane was believed to have passed over the extreme western part of the province of Havana, adjacent to Pinar Del Rio province. Alarm prevailed in Havana and all precautions were taken for emergencies.

Miami, Fla., July 2 (U.P.).—Richard W. Grey, veteran Government meteorologist here, said tonight that if the hurricane in the Caribbean Sea crosses extreme western Cuba as indicated "it will cause increasing southwest winds and heavy rains at Miami during the next 24 hours.

Grey warned that if the storm's course is curving, as reports indicate, "it probably will hit the west coast of Florida." He added that if the hurricane follows its present course it would blow into the Gulf of Mexico.

Venizelos Defeated, So He Exiles Self

Athens, Greece, July 2 (U.P.).—Followers of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, dynamic opposition leader, lost an important by-election in Salonica today, returns from the day's heavy poll indicated conclusively tonight.

The white-bearded statesman, target recently of an assassin's bullet which wounded his wife, announced he was retiring from politics and going into exile abroad as a result.

The government of Premier Panayoti Tsaldaris won 20 seats in the by-elections, and thus control 248 seats in the chamber against the opposition's 91. The vote gives the government a majority in both houses of Parliament.

Deedes, American Flier, Dies in Crash at Canton

Hong Kong, July 2 (A.P.).—An American aviator named Deedes was killed at Canton yesterday while making a demonstration flight, it was learned here today.

Six Autos and Clubhouse Swept Into River by Sudden Deluge.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 2.—A cloudburst descending upon the Potomac River at Middletown Valley, western Maryland, late today, caused widespread damage to highways, bridges, crops and homes, but late tonight no report of loss of life had been received. Communications were crippled in many remote sections along the Potomac River between Williamsport and Shepherdstown, where the heaviest losses were inflicted.

The National highway east of Hagerstown was blocked at Bolivar, 2 miles west of Middletown, Frederick County, where a large bridge which spans a stream was carried out by high water and all traffic from the West to Washington, D. C., is being detoured at Boonsboro, via Weaverton and Frederick. The bridge went out a moment after a large truck passed over it. It was learned that considerable damage was caused to the Washington County branch of the Baltimore & Ohio, a trouble crew leaving this city tonight to make a test before trains are permitted to pass over it.

6 Autos Vanish in River.

At Miller's Saw Mill, on the Potomac near Sharpsburg, six automobiles of guests at several clubhouses were carried into the river and disappeared downstream, while three others were swept in the B. & O. canal, which, empty before the rain, was full tonight.

Nine persons narrowly escaped with their lives when the clubhouse of Leroy Ruth, on a small branch which flows into the Potomac at Taylor's Landing, was lifted from its foundation and carried into the river. Two suitcases of guests, one containing $300 in cash and the other $70 in cash and all of the contents of the clubhouse disappeared into the raging stream.

The nine occupants who were seated at the supper table when the storm broke barely had time to crawl from a rear window to safety and could save nothing.

Streams which ordinarily are mere rivulets rose from ten to 15 feet in a few minutes. A high wind which accompanied the rain leveled scores of fields of corn while the water washed out farmlands so badly that farmers reported their entire crops destroyed. It is feared it is too late to replant them.

Scores of Homes Flooded.

Many rural roads were impassable tonight, the water tearing great

Forestry Army In Full Swing, Roosevelt Told

250,000 Men Working, With 50,000 More to Be Available Soon.

The General Staff and the division of the country in Corps Areas are justified by the Army's success in enrolling and training 250,000 reforestation workers in three months, according to an Army report of its work with the Civilian Conservation Corps.

The report was included in another report submitted by Robert Fechner, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, to the President. In it Mr. Fechner states that the goal of a fully-functioning forest army by July 1 had been reached. There are 250,000 men actually at work, with 24,375 still in conditioning camps and 25,000 veterans being enrolled.

The Army's enrollment job this year was compared very favorably with that during the first three months of our participation in the World War by Col. Duncan K. Major of the General Staff.

Preliminary Preparation.

The answer lies, he said, in the preliminary preparation made by the War Department. Five days after the Inauguration, before the reforestation bill was introduced, the chief of staff directed estimates to be made and regulations drafted for the reception, organization and care of the units.

Secret radio messages were sent to corps area commanders on March 25, warning them of the task before them and telling them their tentative quotas. On April 5 radios went out to the commanders to start the machinery which had already been established. The schedule called for the reception of 222,000 men by June 7. This meant that companies would have to be organized at the rate of 26 a day and work camps established at a daily rate of 27.

Valuable Experience.

The way the task was accomplished is summed up by Col. Major thus:

"The mobilization of the Civilian Conservation Corps with time as the essential element in the execution of the task has been the most valuable experience the Army has had since the World War. It has tested the organization of the War Department and of the Corps Areas in responding to a mission very similar to mobilization for war. From results vastly superior to those obtained during the early period of the World War, certain conclusions are inescapable. They are:

"a. The General Staff has justified itself as a planning agency. It has foreseen every call made upon the War Department for participation in the emergency conservation work program, and has been ready to direct the immediate response to every such demand.

"b. The organization of the United States into Corps Area commands has proved sound. The ability of the Army to take so huge a task in its stride scarcely attracting the attention of the country has been due to the decentralization of effort to nine small war departments, each more efficient than that in Washington at the outbreak of the World War. Thus the General Staff has supervised and coordinated, announcing basic policies to govern, setting forth missions, providing needed assistance but delegating execution of all details to the nine Corps Area commands, and refraining from all interference therein."

Socialists Weigh Union Labor Aid

Plan Would Provide Funds to Organize Groups Under Recovery Act.

Reading, Pa., July 2 (A.P.).—The national executive committee of the Socialist party today discussed plans to place resources of the party at the disposal of labor in its efforts to organize trade unions under the new industrial recovery bill. A subcommittee was appointed to draft a statement of the Socalist view of the bill and map out a plan whereby Socialists would become active in organizing trade unions among the unorganized and help in building up existing organizations.

Clarence Senior, of Illinois, national secretary, reported the party is growing at the rate of one new local organization a day. He stated for the first time Socialist sentiment is beginning to make headway in the South.

Paraguay to Reply To League's Offer

Asuncion, Paraguay, July 2 (U.P.). Paraguay's reply to the League of Nations' later proposal for settlement of the Chaco dispute with Bolivia will be cabled to Geneva tomorrow, the foreign office announced tonight.

The reply, it was authoritatively reported, will insist that any arbitration arrangement must be simultaneous with suspension of hostilities, pointing out the practical impossibility of avoiding clashes during lengthy arbitration negotiations while a hundred thousand soldiers face each other in the territory.

The Paraguayan note will be presented to the full council of the league tomorrow when that body will consider the personnel of the commission to be sent to the Chaco to supervise cessation of hostilities.

St. Paul's Bread Is Raised 50 Pct.

St. Paul, July 2 (A.P.).—An increase to 15 cents from 10 cents for 2-pound twin loaves of bread manufactured by four large wholesale bakeries of the Twin Cities was announced today.

The wholesale price was increased 3 cents to 12 cents. John S. Brant, president of the Associated Bakers of St. Paul, said the increases were decided on as a move to offset recent boosts of from 20 to 50 per cent in the costs of bread ingredients and to standardize as much as possible wholesale bread prices preparatory to adoption of a national code by the baking industry under the industrial recovery act.

Lehman Order Given Police on New Beer Law

Puts Enforcement of 3.2 Statute Up to Local Officials Also.

Albany, N. Y., July 2 (A.P.).—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman tonight ordered all police officers of New York State to enforce the new State law governing the manufacture and sale of 3.2 beer and wine.

The governor said he did not intend his order as the signal for a drive against the speakeasies, but that he wanted to put enforcement of the State law squarely up to local officials and the State Police.

"I don't want them to think that the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission of five members can enforce this law alone," Mr. Lehman said. "It is the duty of every peace officer in the State to enforce it."

It is understood that many reports of violations of the law have reached the offices of both the governor and the commission.

The order was made at a time when the number of Federal prohibition enforcement officers in nearly all districts of the State had been sharply reduced in line with Federal economy measures. It also bears out Mr. Lehman's statement last winter, while the beer bill was being debated by the Legislature, that he would have no staff of State "snoopers" to enforce the beer law, but would depend upon State police and local officers.

Advertising Moves To Form New Code

56 Philadelphia Firms Invited to Establish Standards Under Recovery.

Philadelphia, July 2 (A.P.).—A step toward organization of the advertising industry under the national industrial recovery act was taken today after members of the industry were asked to consider a code of fair competition to be submitted to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the act.

Fifty-six associations and independent companies were invited by Wilfred W. Fry, president of N. W. Ayer & Son, Inc., to draw up a code which "shall establish standards tested by time, and provide for eliminating unworthy practices from the entire advertising industry."

The letter of invitation went to publishers of daily and weekly newspapers and of all types of periodicals, advertising agencies, the printing crafts, commercial artists and photographers, outdoor, display and specialty advertising services, direct mail advertising services, radio stations and motion picture producers.

Forestry Worker Is Killed by Train

Richmond, Va., July 2 (A.P.).—A man tentatively identifed as Clifford Christ, 35, a native of Berkeley, W. Va., and a member of the Citizens Conservation Corps camp in Charles City County, was found crushed to death alongside the tracks of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad near Roxbury about noon today.

No details could be learned of the accident, but it was believed the man was struck by a freight train. In order to definitely identify the body, finger prints were taken and forwarded to Washington.

The death certificate signed by a Roxbury physician cited papers found in the man's pockets, and gave his probable name as Clifford Christ, 35, single, a miner, and a native of Berkeley, W. Va.

Shortage of Money Is Threat in Chile

Santiago, Chile, July 2 (U.P.).—The rapid disappearance of silver Chilean coins from circulation threatens to cause a noticeable shortage of money in Chile. Advertisements in today's newspapers offered to purchase silver and silver coins at a premium profitable to the owners inasmuch as the coins are now worth much more than their paper equivalent.

One-peso coins of 1896 are now worth three paper pesos. As Chilean coins have been gradually debased from 48 British pence to three pence, the premium now paid varies from three paper pesos to as low as seven centavos for coins minted in 1930.

Many Chileans of the poorer classes possess tiny hoards of silver coins minted a few years ago, hoping that some day further depreciation of the paper peso will enable them to sell at a profit.

Pupplexed

A clanging burglar alarm in the cleaning establishment of Irving Johnson, 1647 Eleventh street northwest, last night drew a crowd of curious as police forced entrance to investigate.

Famous Social Worker Urges 'Mind Trading'

Jane Addams Sees Great Good Achieved by World Parleys.

Milwaukee, July 2 (A.P.).—What she termed intellectual free trade throughout the world was advocated today by Jane Addams, of Hull House, Chicago, in an address before the fifty-ninth annual convention of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The noted social worker outlined governmental efforts toward world peace and pointed out benefits she said the world derived from meetings to which the several countries send representatives to advance their views, to compromise and finally to reach agreement for the good of all.

She referred to these conferences as intellectual free trade, but warned that efforts of governments for international accord reach the greatest heights of success only when backed by public opinion.

She expressed the opinion that the course of events will force the United States into the World Court. Of the world economic conference at London, Miss Addams said "it is hardly a conference at all," asserting that thus far the representatives have been indulging in log-rolling.

Cotton Acreage Change Is Asked

St. Matthews, S. C., July 2 (A.P.).—A request that cotton farmers desiring to do so be allowed to plow up all their crop under the national acreage reduction program has been made by J. S. Wannamaker, president of the American Cotton Association.

Mr. Wannamaker announced at his home here today he had telegraphed C. A. Cobb, in charge of the acreage reduction program, in Washington, urging that regulations be amended to permit this procedure if necessary to reach the 10,000,000-acre goal.

Under his proposal, farmers volunteering in any county, which failed to reach its allotment, would be allowed to remove 100 per cent instead of from 25 to 50 per cent of their crop from production. The same plan would be followed in respect to States, or the cotton belt as a whole, if required to obtain the allotment.

Auburn Car Official, Emory O. Penry, Dead

Auburn, Ind., July 2 (A.P.).—Emory O. Penry, vice president of the Auburn Automobile Co., and a director of Cord Corporation, died at his home here today after a long illness. He was 49 years old.

5 Germans Held As Ship Pirates

Shengan's cargo of oil for $100,000.

The confession told how the five Germans, all former seamen, pleaded that they were broke and begged passage from Tangku, the seaport of Tientsin, to Shanghai, in the crew's quarters aboard the Shengan. The steamer's Russian skipper, Boris Vikham, at first was reluctant to take them on board, but finally consented to do so.

On June 28, when the Shengan was 200 miles from Shanghai, the quintet seized the ship, the confession said, murdered Vikham, the Russian mate, the mate's pretty wife, the wireless operator and the seven Chinese and threw their bodies into the shark-infested waters.

Taudin then harrangued 58 Chinese who were left alive, urging them to join his enterprise and promising to divide the booty equitably with them when the cargo had been sold in America.

Most of them refused to join. These were manacled and locked in the hold, and a skeleton crew took the ship toward Dairen.

School Voting Fight Toll Is 5 Dead, 1 Dying

All Killed Are Members of Same Family; Two Others Wounded.

Prestonsburg, Ky., July 2 (A.P.). An election gun fight at the head of Prater Creek was ranked as Kentucky's worst shooting in recent years today, when the death toll mounted to five, with three wounded, one critically.

The shooting occurred Saturday afternoon during a school trustee election. Wilburn Conn, 38, and his uncle, Wayne Click, 40, were killed instantly; Mimms Conn, 45, and his son, Millard Conn, 21, died in a hospital at Martin last night, and Green Conn, 62, father of Wilburn Conn, died at a hospital at Pikesville today.

Lawrence Conn, 23, another son of Green Conn, was in the Martin hospital today with a bullet wound in the abdomen. Dr. Orris Gerhard, attending physician, said he might live for two or three days, but had no chance to survive.

Ike Conn, wounded in the side, and Hayden Howell, shot in the shoulder, were released from the Martin Hospital after treatment. Sheriff B. L. Sturgill arrested Ike Conn pending further investigation of the gun battle, which took place across a table in a crowded voting booth.

Floyd County officers were investigatng conflicting reports as to the cause of the fight. Some witnesses said it occurred when supporters of Sol Sammons for school trustee, who was leading by two votes, claimed it was time to close the polling place, while supporters of his opponent, Arnold Robinette, claimed two more minutes remained for casting ballots.

Other witnesses said the shooting started when a man in the crowd of men, women and children surrounding the table snatched a tally list from an election officer after the time had arrived for voting to stop.

Aid Expenditures Rise 79 Per Cent

(Associated Press.)

A total of $313,410,370 was spent solely for relief purposes last year in 120 American cities.

The children's bureau of the Labor Department said yesterday in reporting this figure that it represented an increase of 79 per cent over the $174,669,286 expended in 1931. The bureau added that 82 per cent of the 1932 total came from public funds.

New York City spent the most—$79,018,025, an increase of 77 per cent over 1931. Expenditures of other large cities were Chicago, $38,163,809, increase of 183 per cent; Boston, $13,648,872, increase of 69 per cent; Detroit, $11,559,027, a 15 per cent drop from the $13,629,727 expended in 1931. The Detroit decline was the most important decrease reported by any city or metropolitan area. The bureau said the largest percentage increase reported by any city was in Mobile, Ala., where the 1932 expenditure of $53,811 represented a 342 per cent increase over the $12,180 spent in 1931.

West Virginia Unit Cops Drum Corps Prize

Dover, Ohio, July 2 (A.P.).—Parkersburg, W. Va., won first honors in the annual District American Legion Drum Corps contest today. Ten other corps paraded but five of the ten were kept from drilling by rain. The Parkersburg corps scored 95.32 points, against 94.78 for Massillon, its nearest competitor.

American Women's Garb Jars Riviera

Nice, France, July 2 (U.P.).—Police today charged that abbreviated bathing suits are ruining the reputation of the Riviera. Authorities started a campaign from Cannes to Mentone to make the bathers "cover up."

Mrs. Billy Arnold, wife of the United States orchestra leader, was a victim of the drive, being served with a summons at Juan Les Pins. She hurried to a hotel covered with a policeman's tunic. Her companion, Mrs. Gordon McAlpin Pyle, socially prominent New Yorker, was warned.

The police said that "American women en route to cocktail parties attired in so-called bathing suits are the worst offenders and are giving the Riviera a bad name."

London Pleases Film Actress.

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Sally Eilers and Thelma Todd, film actresses, expressed the opinion on their return from abroad today that London is the gayest city in Europe. "I know most people won't believe it, but it's true," said the blonde Miss Todd.

Business Men Will Study Red TradeRelations

Curtis Bok and Aids Also to Conduct Thorough Diplomatic Survey.

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—The American Foundation today announced organization of the committee on Russian-American relations to survey thoroughly the entire field of business and diplomatic intercourse between the two nations.

Curtis Bok is chairman of the committee, and its members include many men high in the American industrial, banking and professional fields.

Mr. Bok, Philadelphia publisher, said there was a genuine desire on the part of persons in many professions for accurate material on the American relation to the Soviet union. He said interested persons had been unable to separate the question of recognition from the prejudices on both sides that surround it.

"We propose," said Mr. Bok, "to ascertain, by pertinent studies and inquiries, and to report available facts upon such aspects of the questions as the following: The traditional policy of the United States in recognizing other governments; the debts incurred by the czarist regime; the confiscation by the Soviet government of the property of citizens of other countries; the Russian counter-claims for damages resulting from the allied intervention; the terms on which other countries have recognized the Soviet government; the trade agreements that have, in some cases, accompanied, or followed, recognition; the terms of credit given on goods sold to Russia, including quaranties of payment granted by some of the recognizing countries; and the possibilities, in nature and in volume, of Russian trade.

"American business men," he continued, "want to know whether Russia can buy the products we need to sell, how she can pay for them, and what the effect of this trade would be upon our home markets and upon our own employment situation."

Friend Eulogizes Rev. Herbert Burk

Valley Forge, Pa., July 2 (A.P.). The Rev. Dr. W. Herbert Burk, founder and rector of Washington Memorial Chapel, who died last Friday, was eulogized in an address today by the Rev. W. W. Taylor, at Missouri State Sunday services in the chapel.

Mr. Taylor, a retired Protestant Episcopal clergyman, of Norristown, Pa., for many years was closely associated with Dr. Burk in the development of Valley Forge as "the shrine of American patriotism." He praised Dr. Burk's loyalty and devotion to his church and country and stated the Missouri State service was held as planned at his request.

Dr. Burk will be buried Wednesday in the cemetery at the chapel. The service in the chapel is to be conducted by Mr. Taylor and will be simple in accordance with the wishes of the late rector.

Norfolk Youth Drowns After 2 Others Escape

Norfolk, Va., July 2 (A.P.).—Ten-year-old Francis Patrick Stephenson, son of Mr and Mrs. Joseph E. Stephenson, drowned this afternoon at Ocean View after diving off a small jetty. His neck was believed injured.

Two other boys had narrow escapes from drowning about an hour later not 25 yards from the spot where young Stephenson's body was found.

Cloudburst Wreaks Big River Damage

holes in the road bed. A number of small bridges spanning streams were carried out.

Rain is again falling heavily at 9 o'clock adding to the difficulties of those in stricken sections.

At Sharpsburg, scene of the Civil War Battle of Antietam, a score of homes were flooded in the center of town. Three feet of water entered the first floors of these homes. The steeples of both the Lutheran and Methodist Churches at Sharpsburg were struck by lightning and damaged. The barn of Nick Tatillo, near Smithsburg, was fired by a bolt of lightning and destroyed. A half dozen other places were struck but the damage was light.

Cloud Hits Mountain.

Hundreds of sheaves of wheat just harvested were carried away and destroyed by the water. Three inches of rain fell in half an hour in the southern section of Washington County and perhaps even more than this in that section of the Middletown Valley at the base of South Mountain.

The black cloud, which come out of the West, appeared to eyewitnesses to have been so low that it struck the side of South Mountain just before it released the torrent of water. It remained almost stationary, they said, for nearly a half hour in the height of the storm. Some of the oldest residents could recall no heavier rain.

It was impossible to reach Snyder's Landing, the largest of the many river summer resorts two miles above Shepherdstown, as all wires were down and the only road into the resort blocked so it was not learned to what extent property there was damaged.

What check could be made before darkness fell indicated that the loss to crops would be tremendous, while damage to highways would be thousands of dollars.

Cabinet Called To Meet Today At Annapolis

Cruiser's Dash Is Bringing President's Vacation to Conclusion.

(Associated Press.)

The cruiser Indianapolis, with President Roosevelt aboard, knifed through a tumbling sea on a generally southwesterly course down the Atlantic Coast last night, its speed set to return him to the White House by this afternoon.

Word sped ahead of the ship that Mr. Roosevelt would resume intimate touch with the problems of his office even before landing. An informal Cabinet meeting was called to meet around the cruiser's luncheon table after it drops anchor at Annapolis, Md.

Although a powerful wireless placed it within touch of almost any point on the globe, the fighting ship's hour-to-hour position apparently was known only to those on board. Naval maps indicated a course, however, that, bearing slightly west to follow the line of the coast, would turn the Indianapolis into the calmer waters of Chesapeake Bay around daybreak for the run to Annapolis.

A White House statement yesterday afternoon declared the shipboard Cabinet meeting, as such, would have "nothing whatever to do with the London conference." The Cabinet call was not mandatory. Mr. Roosevelt's secretary, in fact, said the meeting was "social." Several members of the official family, out of the Capital for the week-end, will be absent, among them Secretary Woodin, Postmaster General Farley, Secretary Perkins and Acting Secretary William Phillips, of the State Department.

Present, however, for the talk expected to range over most of the domestic and some international problems will be Secretaries Ickes and Roper, leaders in the public works program, Secretary Wallace, farm relief leader; Secretaries Dern and Swanson, Army and Navy chiefs, and probably Acting Secretary Dean Acheson, of the Treasury, and Lewis Douglas, director of the budget.

The President yesterday had opportunity to contrast the thrills of sailing his schooner, Amberjack II, with the high speed of a cruiser so powerful it could almost leap from one wave crest to another.

"Any speed up to 32½ knots, and that easily," was the answer given yesterday by Admiral William H. Standley, new chief of naval operations, to a question about the Indianapolis' potentialities.

This meant, Navy officials said, the vessel had plenty of time to show off her paces to the President on the southward trip. There was time enough, if Mr. Roosevelt wanted, to take a 200 or 300 mile dart out to sea and back again and still make Annapolis from Campobello, N. B., on scheduled time.

None Injured as Bomb Explodes in Austria

Vienna, July 2 (A.P.).—A bomb exploded at Saint Ruprecht, Styria, today, demolishing a fence and shattering windows of two buildings. No one was injured.

A number of bombings in the past few weeks in Austria were blamed by the Dollfuss government on the adherents of Chancellor Hitler of Germany. The Hitler Nazi party was banned recently in Austria.

Cotton to Be Sold To Soviet Russia

expected to be around $4,000,000, although the brief statement issued by Jones did not mention this amount, nor did it name the American firms concerned. It was said in an authoritative quarter that Anderson, Clayton & Co., and G. H. McFadden & Co., of Philadelphia, would take part.

May Be Recognition Step.

Because the United States does not recognize the Soviet Union, it was understood the Reconstruction Corporation could not lend directly to Russia as it did to China recently in authorizing a $50,000,000 loan for the purchase of American wheat and cotton.

In some quarters last night the Reconstruction Corporation's move, particularly since it was made with the approval of the President, was interpreted as a possible opening wedge to recognition of Russia.

There have been indications that Mr. Roosevelt would not be opposed to recognition of the Soviet state at some time in the future, but he himself has never spoken publicly upon the subject, either immediately before or after taking office.

Strong proponents of recognition are close advisers to the Chief Executive. In addition to some among his supporters on Capitol Hill, who have urged immediate recognition, there are some members of his Cabinet who have urged the same course.

Moley Carries Dollars Not Pounds, in London

London, July 2 (A.P.).—Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley apparently did not subscribe to the theory that when in London one should do as Londoners do.

Although he arrived last week, Prof. Moley still carries his money in dollars instead of pounds. His billfold was well supplied with $20 notes, but he had to borrow half a crown (about 54 cents) for taxi fare from companions.

Schuyler Grey, Movie Technician, Expires

Grey was the technical expert on Army and Naval questions for Fox, Paramount, MGM and Pathe companies.

Watson Approves Search For Outstanding Fire Hero

Post Will Help Labor Day Parade Group Locate National Figure.

Fire Chief George S. Watson highly approves of the search by The Washington Post and the National Firemen's Association for the country's outstanding fire hero.

A campaign has been started to locate the man, woman, or even child who has accomplished the most heroic work in connection with firefighting or rescues. When the judges, who will be announced soon, decide upon whom the honor is to be bestowed, that individual will be brought to the eleventh annual Firemen's Labor Day Parade, decorated and royally entertained.

In selecting the judges some of the most prominent men in America, who have shown interest in firefighting, will be approached.

When Chief Watson was informed of the plan to name a national fire hero he said:

"I don't know why this hasn't been done before. Medals are awarded constantly for heroic deeds, and certainly firemen are in a class by themselves when it comes to the saving of life and property. It's a daily routine with them throughout the world."

The Post and the Firemen's Association today will contact 2,500 leading newspapers in America, as well as fire chiefs, in an effort to find the person who best deserves the hero distinction.

Although preparations for the parade are but five days old, much work has been accomplished by Sergt. A. J. Bargagni and the officers of the National Firemen's Association.

Early this week 5,000 invitations will be mailed to fire companies in all parts of the country. By the end of the week committee appointments will be made and announced.

Although no bands have yet been asked to appear in the parade, one organization has already requested a place in the column. It is the 250-piece band of the local Loew Theaters, a winner in the last two parades.

Tonight the fire fighters association of the District will meet at the Hamilton Hotel. Noble Rushe, vice president, and George Finger, organizer, will outline plans for the parade.

As many regular fire companies and volunteer companies in Virginia and Maryland are holding Fourth of July celebrations, a delegation from the firemen's organization will visit as many as possible and encourage the firefighters to bring bands and men to Washington on Labor Day.

Sergt. Bargagni and a representative of The Post have accepted an invitation from the firemen of Orange, Va., to attend their firemen's circus tomorrow. This section has always been well represented in the parade.

Details of the parade and the progress of its organizers are published daily in The Post, which is sponsoring the event along with the Firemen's Association.

Farley Answers Snell's Criticism

Calls Republican Leader's Attack Exhibition of "Petty Politics."

(Associated Press.)

Postmaster General James A. Farley, Democratic national committee chairman, yesterday labeled as a "ruthless and reckless exhibition of petty partisan politics" the criticism of the administration a week ago by Representative Snell of New York, House Republican leader.

Contending that the public as a whole was "marching solidly behind President Roosevelt and rejoicing at the general and continuous revival of business," Farley asserted in a statement through the national committee that Snell's "untimely and unwarranted attack" deserved "condemnation from every citizen who puts recovery of the Nation above any desire for mere partisan success."

Snell, high in the councils of the Republican party, inserted in the Congressional Record his declaration that the Democratic Congress and the administration had gone on a "spending spree," and he drew counter-attacks from Democratic leaders by asserting that the administration was keeping two sets of books in order to attain a balanced budget.

Funds for Relief Show Large Gain

Relief expenditures in 120 American cities totaled $313,410,370 in 1932, an increase of 79 per cent over the total of $174,669,286 spent in 1931, according to a tabulation of figures for the two years just made public by the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor in a supplement to the bureau's monthly relief bulletin. Of this total, 82 per cent came from public funds.

About 43,000,000 people are resident in these 120 cities and in the nearby areas included in their relief programs. This represents approximately 62 per cent of the urban population and 35 per cent of the total population of the United States.

The largest single expenditure in any city in 1932 was reported by New York, $79,018,025, an increase of 77 per cent over 1931. Chicago was second, Boston third and Detroit fourth.

Post's New Type Designed To Favor Eyes of Readers

Modern and Scientific Face Product of Careful Research to Find Form Imposing Least Strain Upon Vision; Optical Specialists Aided in Search.

First of a series of innovations and improvements in The Washington Post, a new type face today distinguishes the news columns of "The Capital's greatest NEWSpaper."

The average reader will notice that the type is much easier to read; that it is larger and more distinct; that his eye immediately distinguishes each individual letter without the necessity of a second glance or closer scrutiny. Behind these desirable effects is a history of development and scientific study that extends back through the centuries to the year 868.

In that year, on May 11, to be exact, Wang Chieh, an otherwise unidentified Chinaman, published a book printed from blocks in order to "perpetuate the memory of his parents." Two centuries later another Chinese, Pi Sheng, was engaged in the art of printing from moveable type blocks, but it was not until near the middle of the fifteenth century that a similar principle was independently discovered in Europe. The famous Gutenberg Bible, which now reposes in the Library of Congress as a part of the Vollbehr collection, is traditionally accepted as the first book printed from moveable type and was published about the year 1454. It provides an interesting example of the ideals which have finally culminated in the development of types such as that in which this column is printed.

It was the intention of early printers, to simulate hand lettering as closely as possible. This resulted in elaborate "illumination"—the use of decorative devices—which later became identified with individual type letters. On the other hand, it has been the modern desire to make type as plain and readable as possible.

Early type designers featured graceful curves and ornamentation that still make their work the subject of admiration, but which from a practical standpoint are not adaptable to today's need. They prove tiresome to the eye.

Throughout the years type-designers have tried to achieve type forms that would immediately identify each individual letter and at the same time present a pleasing appearance. They have experimented with various styles of shading and with slender or bulky letters, with severe lines and angles as opposed to combinations of straight lines and curves, with and without decorative d[illegible]ces.

Never before, though, have the facilities of optical science been so fully employed as in the creation of the new type-face which henceforth will be used in the columns of The Washington Post.

This type is slightly larger than that previously employed by The Post. It is in the rounder character of its design, the more substantial strokes that form each letter and in the more visible centers of such letters as "a," "o," "p," "e" &c., that the distinction is most apparent, however.

The designers were not satisfied with mere theory, but presented samples of printing by this type to leading specialists in optical science. By their studies of the accommodative and refractive capacities of the average human eye as applied to examples of this type in contrast with older forms, it has been determined that the eye can more quickly and easily grasp letters and words in this type design and is subject to far less strain.

On the basis of such authoritative commendation The Washington Post presents "all the news that's worthwhile reading" in a type which will prove most advantageous to its readers.

Roosevelt Idea Of Stabilization Is Made Clear

Opposes U. S. Sponsoring Federal Reserve's Exchange Acts.

(United Press.)

President Roosevelt's chief objection to the World Economic Conference currency stabilization proposal, which he rejected, was reported here last night to be based on his aversion to making the United States Government the sponsor for exchange activities of the Federal Reserve Banks.

Under the terms of the proposal each country, whose currency is not on the gold standard, would agree to adopt such measures as necessary to limit exchange speculation.

In addition, each of the signatory governments would agree to ask its Central Bank to work together with the central banks of other governments, signing the stabilization agreement in limiting speculation.

Peculiar Relationship Cited.

It was pointed out here because of the peculiar relation of the Federal Reserve Banks with the Government, any request by the President would be interpreted more as a command. Thus the Government would be assuming responsibility for the exchange negotiations.

This, it was reported here tonight, Mr. Roosevelt desires to avoid. Former administrations, particularly those of Presidents Coolidge and Hoover, took a similar stand during debt and reparations negotiations when European governments sought to have the American government guide the actions of the reserve banks.

In the face of booming stock and commodity markets and as his gigantic industrial recovery program begins to take form, Mr. Roosevelt is not expected to take any steps to "peg" the dollar at this time.

Administration's Attitude.

The administration has taken the position that the dollar must find its own level. The President has consistently shown objection to the use of government funds or governmental guarantee to support the dollar on the international exchange markets.

This was first made apparent when he took the Nation off the gold standard. To utilize government funds to regulate exchange prices while trying to boost prices of domestic commodities, through a cheaper dollar would be to establish a conflict on his own program, it was pointed out here last night.

Officials likewise feared any stabilization proposal which the government might agree to now, however innocuous, would be misinterpreted throughout the country and might conceivably have a disastrous reaction on the zooming markets.

Coll Gangster Bolts Jail by Starving Self

Squeezes Through Aperture After Picking Cell Lock in 2d Escape.

New York, July 2 (U.P.).—A New York City desperado, former member of the Vincent Coll gang, escaped today from the Westchester County Penitentiary after having starved himself for two weeks in order to squeeze through a 7-inch airshaft aperture.

The escaped prisoner is Arthur Palumbo, 23, who was to have been moved to Sing Sing Prison soon to begin a fifteen-year term imposed after he had escaped from the Westchester Penitentiary a year ago.

Palumbo, known as a dangerous gunman, had complained of stomach trouble during the last two weeks and refused to eat. Prison authorities did not suspect the purpose of his fasting.

In some manner early today, he picked the lock on the cell where he had bee in solitary confinement. He then ascended the airshaft two floors, and squeezed himself through the aperture.

He carried with him several bed sheets, tied together and blackened with shoe polish so they could not be seen dangling against the prison wall. He descended by the sheets four stories to the ground.

Palumbo was arrested in July, 1931, near Catskill, by police who were searching for Vincent Coll. He pleaded guilty to charges of assault and resisting arrest, and was given a two-year term in the County Penitentiary.

One year later—in July, 1932—Palumbo and three other men discovered a way to foil the electric cell-locking system with which the prison is equipped, and he escaped. Palumbo and one of his fellow convicts were captured. A third, Ralph Richards, half brother of Vincent Richards, was shot to death and the fourth, John Derosa, is still at large.

Palumbo was given the Sing Sing sentence for felonious escape and, upon completing his term in the County Penitentiary, was to have been transferred to Sing Sing this month.

Balbo's Planes Ready to Begin Hop to Iceland

Armada Reaches Ireland; Wrecked Machine Is Replaced.

Londonderry, Ireland, July 2 (U.P.).—The 24 seaplanes in the Italian aerial armada, on a flight to Chicago, rode at their moorings in this landlocked harbor tonight, awaiting the dawn when they plan to proceed to Iceland on the next hazardous leg of their transatlantic journey to America.

The air fleet, led by Gen. Italo Balbo, saddened by the loss of one man and serious injury to two others in an accident on landing yesterday at Amsterdam, made the 630-mile flight here from Holland without incident.

They averaged about 130 miles an hour for the hop, and after circling in formation gracefully over the harbor, swooped to the rippling surface of the bay at 12:38 p. m. (6:38 a. m., Eastern standard time).

The alighting on Lough Oyle was hailed by a great cheer from the throngs expecting the Italian Royal Air Force men. They came in fast, with Gen. Balbo's squadron in the lead, and, one by one, in formation brought their ships to rest on the water.

Wrecked Plane Replaced.

The plane wrecked yesterday in Holland, in which a mechanic was drowned, was replaced by a twenty-fifth machine which had been attached to the fleet for just such an emergency.

Gen. Balbo's first act on arrival here was to telephone to Premier Benito Mussolini, in Rome, who sent his good wishes to the men.

"The planes behaved splendidly," Gen. Balbo told Il Duce. "We do not anticipate they will give us any further trouble between here and Chicago."

He said the squadrons were ready to take off for Reyjavik, Iceland, early tomorrow.

Fly Close to Sea.

The Italians left Amsterdam at 7:27 a. m. (1:27 a. m. Eastern standard time), and encountered heavy clouds and misting rains soon after they left the coast of Holland, shortly after 8 a. m. They were obliged to fly a few feet above the surface of the North Sea, practically skimming the waves.

The weather cleared in the second hour, however, but fog thickened over the Irish Sea. Gen. Balbo said he considered landing at Lough Neagh, but reports from Londonderry of better weather encouraged the fliers and they proceeded to their destination.

The planes prior to landing here, flew over Londonderry in perfect formation. One squadron of three appeared to be flying dangerously close to trees on shore, but came to their mooring without mishap.

'Prince Mike' Gets His Liberty Today

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—"Prince Michael Romanoff," who is really a former pants presser named Harry F. Gerguson, will be released from the Federal House of Detention tomorrow upon the completion of a 90-day term for perjury.

Friends of the bogus prince, who has hoaxed society all over the world, say he intends to mend his ways. They are negotiating for a job for him in a Fifth avenue store.

Gerguson pleaded guilty to perjury before an immigration board inquiring into his reappearance in this country after he had been deported. Sentence was suspended on charges of reentering the country illegally and evading immigration officers, but Gerguson will be on probation for three years.

U. S. May Settle Hosiery Dispute

Reading, Pa., July 2 (A.P.).—Possibility of an early settlement of the hosiery workers' strike was seen today when Dr. Benjamin M. Squire, personal representative of Secretary of Labor Perkins, called on officials of the American Federation of Full Fashioned Hosiery Workers not to leave Reading over the holiday period.

Dr. Squire and Fred M. Keightly, commissioner of conciliation of the Department of Labor, held a meeting with representatives of 32 Berks County hosiery manufacturers and later conferred with Emil Rieve, national president of the union.

Dr. Squires said it may not be necessary to hold hearings on the strike, and that a further meeting with the manufacturers would be called tomorrow.

Mercury Rises To 112 Degrees, Burning Crops

Middle West Swelters in Prolonged Wave of Intense Heat.

Kansas City, Mo., July 2 (U.P.).—Farmers saw their crops burning and city dwellers suffered intensely under record-breaking temperatures today as the Middlewest sweltered under a prolonged heat wave.

Kansas City was granted slight relief today and the maximum temperature was only 96, compared with yesterday's 103. A shift in wind, which brought comforting breezes from the north and east to replace the hot blasts from the south, made it easier to bear up under the 96-degree heat.

Bartlesville, Okla., recorded a temperature of 112 today, the hottest in five years. For two weeks the thermometer has climbed past 105 every day, and crops in that section have suffered greatly.

Live stock raisers reported pastures drying up as week followed week without any rain. Officially, Kansas has just finished the driest June in 66 years, or ever since records have been kept.

At Dodge City, Kan., a farmer found 22 newly hatched chickens in a steel granary, which had acted as an incubator under the 108-degree temperature.

Wiley Post to Map World Flight Here

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Wiley Post will go to Washington tomorrow to consult Navy Department experts in plotting the course of his projected solo flight around the world, which will start in a week or ten days.

Post's plane, which he flew here yesterday from Dayton, Ohio, is under guard at Mitchel Field, his representative said, to protect a newly designed navigation instrument. The craft is ready for the flight with the exception of a final check of the engine and the installation of two compasses.

Mrs. Post flew here last night from Oklahoma City, and will remain until her husband's flight has started.

Denver Gang Leader Slain During Robbery

Raton, N. Mex., July 2 (U.P.).—Mike Cito, suspected by police of being a leader of Denver gangsters, was shot fatally here today by W. E. Wingo, 54, a watchman, during the robbery of a grocery.

Cito, standing guard for three other men, struck Wingo with his revolver after the cartridges in the gun failed to explode. Wingo was dazed, but managed to shoot Cito four times.

Winston-Salem Plane Crash Is Fatal to Two

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 2 (U.P.).—Burton Pope, 18, pilot, and M. W. Adams, 25, passenger, were killed at 6:30 p. m. today when Pope's airplane crashed in a brickyard near Winston-Salem. Cause of the crash was undetermined.

George Pope, brother of Burton, died five months ago in a plane crash. The tragedy today marked the third here within the past year, with a total of five killed. Both Burton Pope and Adams were residents of Winston-Salem.

New Brunswick Awaits Armada

Tilley representing New Brunswick. Sailors from the Canadian cruiser Saguenay will form a guard of honor for Gen. Balbo when he first steps on Canadian soil.

No other planes will be allowed to fly in the vicinity of Shediac Bay during the arrival and departure of the Italian fleet.

Daily Mail in London Lauds Roosevelt Stand

London, (Monday) July 3 (U.P.). The Daily Mail in an editorial today lauded President Roosevelt's determined policy at the economic conference and said so far he alone had produced a consistent policy designed to cope with the depression.

"There have been suggestions that the President should make sacrifices, but no sufficient reason has yet been produced to show why he should," the editorial said. "Until other countries are willing to make such comparable sacrifices—and no such offers on any subject have us yet emerged—it would be unreasonable to expect him to interfere with his policy."

Tackles Most Involved of Problems That Confront Country.

Official Started Career by Work in Pioneer Settlement House.

By Robert F. Whitney.

A career which began in social work with its attempt at rehabilitation of the human element has now turned to the rehabilitation of the most tangled of the Nation's problems—transportation.

When Joseph B. Eastman was graduated from Amherst College in 1904, in the foosteps of his father, a Presbyterian minister, he was a fellow for a year at South End House, the second "settlement house" in the country. There he was trained by the famous social worker, Robert A. Woods.

Now he is a Federal coordinator of transportation, which sounds like a difficult task from the title alone. But let Mr. Eastman describe his job:

"First," he said, "it is to help the railroads effect economies in management and operation, particularly through better cooperation with each other by the elimination of unnecessary competitive waste.

"Second is the conducting of research for the determining of recommendations for further and more permanent legislation for transportation in general."

So railroads are not the only problem of Mr. Eatsman's job. His is the determining of a way to coordinate the rails, air, water and highway into an efficient skein of arteries, all supplementing and none hurting each other.

This week, Mr. Eastman said, he will have his organization whipped into shape to begin the tremendous job which will tie in with every one of the President's efforts to make jobs and restore all of the Nation's industries.

"Mine is an economy problem," Mr. Eastman said, "and of course in its first operation there won't be many jobs made. The ultimate effect, the prosperous operation of the entire transportation system, however, will increase employment."

Eastman, who retains his title as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, stepped out of his role as coordinator just ten days ago—to the great benefit of the Nation.

The railway operators had placed a 25 per cent wage cut before railway labor. A general strike was a possibility—a strike which at this time would have paralyzed every one of the President's projects for recovery. Mr. Eastman went into conference with representatives of the two groups. The wage cut was not made. Asked about it he said: "The President asked me to step in."

The rail coordinator was born at Katonah, Westchester County, N. Y., in 1882. Following his year at South End House, he was connected with the Public Franchise League in Boston.

The league, a group of prominent Bostonians which included the new Supreme Court Justice Brandeis, was engaged in fighting the people's cause against the public utility corporations of the city.

He later became a member of the Public Service Commission of Massachusetts, and in 1919 was appointed a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He has advocated the Government operation of railways.

U. S. Structure Shows Outlook For Trade Gain

Vast and Varied Materials Used Reveal Goal of Public Works.

(By The Associated Press.)

The large amount and great variety of material used in construction of one building, the huge Department of Commerce structure, may be cited as an indicator of the widespread stimulation of industry expected to result from the $3,300,000,000 public works program.

In it were used 2,000 carloads of limestone from Indiana, 150 carloads of granite quarried in Connecticut, and cut, sawed and milled in Massachusetts; 1,400 tons of marble from Missouri and Vermont, stone from Minnesota, Colorado and Georgia.

Pennsylvania furnished a million and a half face bricks, and 200,000 gray bricks for the boiler room. The District of Columbia provided 10 million common bricks, while Ohio contributed 300 tons of wall and floor tile. The building required 16,400 tons of structural steel. Supporting it are 80 miles of reinforced concrete piling—more than 13,000 piles. In the roof alone builders were required to use two tons of copper nails.

There are about five acres of glass in the windows. In the mechanical equipment there is almost everything from thermostatic valves to air-conditioning apparatus.

In fitting up such a building, the Government engages directly, or indirectly, the services of workers and executives, salesmen and bankers, all over the country. Their activities cover the making and selling of desks and chairs, mirrors and wardrobes, vacuum cleaners and electric light bulbs, carpets and linoleum, ash cans and bag racks, shelving and filing cases.

Thus, it may be seen that factory employes, quarrymen, miners, farmers, foresters, transportation workers, merchants and their staffs, engineers, architects and draftsmen, as well as labor in the construction industries, participate in construction enterprises of this kind.

Boardman Showing Little Improvement

Indianapolis, July 2 (A.P.).—The condition of Russell Boardman, famous aviator, who was injured here yesterday during the New York-to-Los Angeles Air Derby, showed some slight improvement, but remained very critical this afternoon. Only Mrs. Boardman, who flew here from Providence, R. I., and a few personal friends were permitted to see the injured flier at the City Hospital. He is suffering from a fractured skull, a broken shoulder and a punctured lung.

So far, no attempt has been made by attending physicians to perform an operation. His condition is so serious, they said, that nothing could be done but await developments.

Many Whales Cast On Florida Beach

Miami, Fla., July 2 (A.P.).—Scores of killer whales have been cast upon the beach in the desolate Cape Sable region, south of here, fishermen reported today.

The whales were 12 to 30 feet in length, and veteran fishermen estimated their weight would range from 2,000 to 6,000 pounds each. Cape Sable is at the extreme southern part of the Florida mainland. It is virtually inaccessible except by boat.

Kay and Colman Irwin, fishermen, said they counted 75 whales dead along the beach. They could offer no explanation of how the whales were cast out of the water.

Bank Embezzler Seized; $35,000 Loot Missing

Laredo, Tex., July 2 (A.P.).—Arrested at a hotel here Friday with $1,650 cash in his possession, a man who gave the name of Al Morris confessed today, officers said, that he was Albert Wilfred Bishop, former teller in the Whitney National Bank of New Orleans, charged with embezzlement of approximately $37,000 of the bank's funds. He said he left New Orleans March 20.

Trinidad's Storm Dead Placed at 13

1,000 Homeless as Property Damage From Storms Tops $3,000,000.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, July 2 (A.P.).—Trinidad today counted its hurricane dead at 13, its homeless at 1,000, and estimated at $3,000,000 the property damage wrought by the violent storm of Tuesday night and Wednesday.

These figures, it was believed, would not tell the complete story of havoc caused by the tropical blow which swept across southern Trinidad and into Venezuela and brushed the outskirts of the Caribbean islands.

Highways in many districts were still blocked by fallen trees, and until the restoration of communications it was impossible to give an accurate account of the loss. Hundreds of homeless settlers in the Cedros and Icacos districts were suffering from shortage of food, and many other areas were in the same plight.

Indiana Woman Elected Delta Theta Tau Head

Detroit, July 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Nova Vonderschmitt, of Bloomington, Ind., was elected president of the Delta Theta Tau Fraternity in the closing session of its Twenty-eighth annual convention here.

Airplane Driven by Steam Put Aside for Better Times

Craft Recently Tested to Be Improved When Depression Ends.

By Charles E. Planck.

When the depression is over, William J. Besler, of Oakland, Calif., will get out his steam-engined airplane again and continue his very hopeful experiments.

Besler and his brother installed a two-cylinder, compound, double-acting, V-type steam engine in a standard plane and flew it successfully in April of this year. He did most of the things experts have prophesied as possible for a plane steam powered. The performance most eagerly anticipated, that of reversing the engine and the direction of the propellor to slow up landing speed and decrease the landing glide, was successfully demonstrated. But Besler had to get back to the steam work with which he makes his living, and his experimental plane has been resting since then.

The engine weighed 180 pounds, and needed 1,500 pounds of water for operation over any length of time. A makeshift section of automobile radiator, served as a very inefficient condenser, and vast improvement was admittedly possible. The design of the engine followed steam-engine principles, with little regard to the all-important item of weight in the air. It is believed that materials used in modern airplanes, applied to the engine will lower the weight to such an extent that it will operate efficiently and require but 10 gallons of water for average length flights.

Elimination of vibration, absence of exhaust noise and compactness of power plant units are anticipated features of the application of steam power to planes.

Memorial Rites Held For Victims of Akron

Lakehurst, N. J., July 2 (A.P.).—Memorial services for the officers and enlisted men who lost their lives when the Navy dirigible Akron plunged into the sea, and for those of the blimp J-3 crew who were drowned in trying to aid their comrades, were held today in the Cathedral of the Air here.

The climax of the ceremony was the roll call of the crews of the Akron and the J-3 and taps.

Storms Damage Crops In Minnesota, Wisconsin

St. Paul, Minn., July 2 (A.P.).—Storms which swept southeastern Minnesota and southwestern Wisconsin last night caused widespread damage to property and crops. Kenneth Barclay, 15, of Chatfield, Minn., was killed when an auto plunged into an 18-foot washout on an Iowa highway.

Crops in the Lanesboro, Minn., vicinity were ruined by wind and hail, and numerous buildings were damaged. In western Wisconsin, heavy rains caused several washouts on the Burlington Railroad's line.

Carol Is Barely Saved As Shots Fly by Him

London (Monday), July 3 (U.P.).—A Vienna dispatch in the Daily Mail today revealed that King Carol, of Roumania, had a narrow escape yesterday when machine gun bullets passed within two feet of him during a visit to an arms factory near Cluj, in Roumania.

The dispatch said a soldier, startled by a shot from a nearby officer, began firing a new model machine gun in the direction of Carol, whereupon the officer kicked the barrel to another direction. The soldier was arrested, but it was believed his action was accidental.

Australia Approves Wheat Export Limits

Sydney, Australia, July 2 (A.P.). Approval in principle and with reservations of restriction of wheat exports has been given by a meeting of Australian states with the federal government, it was announced today in a statement issued by J. G. Latham, minister of industry.

The reservations include the obtaining of cooperation from European wheat producing and exporting countries and the necessity that the scheme be considered "fair to Australian interests."

Three Cuban Rebels Killed in Fierce Clash

Whiskey Shortage Looms Should Law Be Repealed

Supply for Only One Thirty-seventh of 1917 Thirst in Sight.

(Associated Press.)

Guardians of the Government's store of medicinal whisky yesterday foretold a liquor shortage should predictions of early repeal of the dry law come true, pointing by way of comparison to the 11,000,000 gallons now on hand as against the 167,000,000 gallons consumed in 1917.

Prospects were reported small for supplying any sizable demand for properly aged whisky for two years or longer except through importation of foreign liquors, the duty on which might result in high prices.

Of the 11,000,000 gallons now stored under lock in Government warehouses not more than 4,500,000 gallons can be used in the next year. After that, 1,000,000 gallons a year will become marketable until a new supply had aged sufficiently to go on the market. Under the present law, whisky must be aged four years before it can be sold. The Government resumed the distillation of medicinal whisky in 1929 at the rate of a million gallons a year. The first of the new whisky will be on the market this fall, while about 3,500,000 gallons of older whisky rests in the warehouses of the country.

The 4,500,000 gallons of whisky that could be put on the market now under repeal would be about one-thirty-seventh of the consumption of distilled spirits in 1917, the last year before the wartime restrictions began to be felt.

The amount of whisky now on hand, however, could be stretched. Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, explained this could be done by a method followed before prohibition, but little known to the general public.

Bonded whisky, he explained, could be rectified by mixing alcohol with the whisky, giving the same effect but permitting more gallons to be placed on the market. About half the whisky sold in this country before prohibition, Doran said, was rectified whisky.

2 Mexicans Get Stay In Noted Killing Case

Mexico City, July 2 (A.P.).—Two men convicted of killing Mrs. Rosalie Evans in 1924—a crime with international complications—were ordered to be executed at the Puebla Penitentiary tomorrow morning but their attorney obtained a stay of three days.

The prisoners, Francisco Ruiz and Alejo Garcia, stayed off the firing squad by obtaining a restraining order on the allegation that the law required condemned prisoners to be executed within five years of the date of their sentence. The order automatically stays the execution for three days to permit the District court to rule. Reports from Puebla said the court was considering commuting the sentences to life imprisonment.

Proof of Julep Is in Drinking

Complainant Tells Court Stakeholder Spent $50 Wager Money Determining Relative Merits of Mint Beverages From Georgia and Maryland.

Red Bank, N. J., July 2 (U.P.).—The relative merits of Maryland and Georgia mint juleps were made the subject of a court case here today.

Franklin C. Moyan, who recently sought a seat in the New Jersey State Senate and who is widely known for his work in the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was the complainant.

Moyan said that he and another man recently got into an argument about mint juleps and put up a wager of $25 on their beliefs. Moyan said that the mint juep, Maryland style, is far and away superior to the Georgia drink.

Richard Randall, a friend, held the stakes, amounting to $50, and was instructed to make an investigation and decide the issue. Yesterday, Moyan told Justice George Hughes, he met Randall, who congratulated him on having won the bet.

"That's just fine," Moyan said to Randall. "I'll take the money now."

Randall then explained, Moyan said, that he had spent all the money in his investigation. "You ought to be satisfied in knowing you're right," Randall said, "and not ask for the money."

Moyan went to Justice Hughes and asked that a warrant charging grand larceny be issued against Randall. The court, however, informed him that it has no jurisdiction over wagers.

"You deserved to lose, anyhow," said Justice Hughes. "You are both wrong. The best mint julep I ever tasted was the kind they make in Louisiana."

Hitler Is Confident Of Army Support

Berlin, July 2 (U.P.).—Chancellor Adolf Hitler declared in an address tonight that he felt confident the army would adhere spontaneously to his new regime.

The chancellor, speaking to storm troop and steel helmet leaders in the Reichenhall, commented on the relations between the Nazi brown shirts and the Reichswehr.

"The political army of the German revolution," he said, "in no wise intends to replace or compete with the Reichswehr. The Reichsarmy shall be the only armed force in the whole nation."

Largest Number Registers in History; 33 States Are Represented.

Enrolling the largest number in its history, the summer session of Catholic University completed registration of more than 1,100 students late Saturday. Additional registrations will be received for the sessions of the Apologetic Institute from July 10-29, under the Most Rev. John F. Noll, Bishop of Fort Wayne; the Most Rev. Richard O. The students have come from 33 States, the District of Columbia, three Canadian provinces, Cuba and Australia. The District of Columbia leads the list with 415 registrations.

The number of sisters remains about the same as in previous years with a small increase in the number of priests. The greatest percentage of increase is among the lay men and women.

The lecture series was opened Saturday evening by Miss Margaret Lynch, assistant executive secretary of the National Council of Catholic Women, speaking on "Influence of the Farm Woman in the Present Crisis."

Buses will leave McMahon Hall tomorrow at 10 a. m. for Mount Vernon on the first of three excursions offered this summer.

This evening the Rev. Dr. Edward Rauth, O. S. B., will lecture on "Eidetic Images" in the Music Building Auditorium at 7:15. His talk will be illustrated by moving pictures of his laboratory experiments during the past year with the boys from St. Mary's Industrial School of Baltimore. Friday evening, the Most Rev. Amelto Giovanni Cicognani, the apostolic delegate, will address the students in the crypt of the National Shrine and celebrate benediction.

Literary Fund Pay to Virginia Dry Agents Hit

W. Worth Smith Demands Special Prosecutors Be Dismissed.

Richmond, Va., July 2 (A.P.).—State Senator W. Worth Smith, gubernatorial candidate, today called on Attorney General John R. Saunders to "dismiss forthwith from your services the special prosecutors and the special agents charged with certain duties with reference to the prohibition act."

In a letter to the attorney general, the Louisa senator said he felt that this action was the proper thing to do in the light of Judge Julien Gunn's decision of Saturday declaring unconstitutional that section of the Layman act under which fines and forfeitures from liquor law violations have been used to pay certain Layman act enforcement costs.

The letter stated:

"In view of the decision handed down by Judge Gunn, from which it appears that the Prohibition Department has unlawfully received $8,000,000 belonging to the Literary Fund, I am writing to urge you to dismiss forthwith from your services the special prosecutors and the special agents, charged with certain duties with reference to the prohibition act.

"In view of what has taken place in the United States and in Virginia, it seems to me that crimes committed against prohibition might be handled in the same manner as murder, rape and other major crimes, to-wit: Through the sheriffs of the counties and cities and the Commonwealth's attorney, to the end that the public free school system, which has been unlawfully deprived of $8,000,000, may be reimbursed at the earliest possible date."

Judge Gunn's decision voiced that section of the layman act as being in contradiction of the State constitution which provides that all fines and forfeitures under State law violations shall go into the literary fund.

Assistant Attorney General E. H. Gibson has said that Judge Gunn's decision does not affect the present status of the State prohibition department, but merly diverts into the literary fund that money which has in the past been used to pay court cost in prohibition cases comprising fees to Commonwealth's attorneys, dry raiders, sheriffs, witnesses, jurors, &c.

The assistant attorney general also said that this decision will not affect enforcement of the State dry law in any particular, since approximately $50,000 annually has been made available by the Legislature for the current biennium for this purpose.

52-Foot Fall of Snow Reported by Trapper

Yakima, Wash., July 2 (A.P.).—Weather report: William Clark, a trapper, says 52 feet of snow fell last winter at his cabin by Fish Lake, near the headquarters of the Cle Elum River. The snow, however, most of the time was packed down to 9 or 10 feet deep, he said. The first fell October 22 and the last May 7.

Antiquated Marriage Laws Revised by Several States

Chicago, July 2 (A.P.).—Antiquated matrimonial statutes were the target for sharp revisionary action during current State legislative sessions, a survey today showed.

The "notice of intention" statutes which required several days between application for marriage licenses and their issuance was repealed by a number of States, notably Texas, Idaho, and Iowa.

The requirement had had the effect of cutting the number of marriages within the State in half, according to reports by the respective statistics bureaus.

In California and New Jersey laws prohibiting a divorcee who remarries from drawing alimony from her previous husband or husbands were enacted.

Nebraska shortened from six months to five weeks it elapsed time requirement for hearing a divorce suit.

In Minnesota a law permitted former wives or former husbands to obtain a decree forbidding the other to remarry for five years was abolished.

The Indiana Legislature amended its divorce law to permit a one-year resident of the State to obtain a decree.

Kansas amended laws to allow residents of Army posts to file divorce proceedings in an adjacent county after one year at the reservation.

Oregon on the other hand, passed a "gin marriage" law, so-called colloquially, requiring a couple to apply for a license three days before it could be issued.

New York abolished the common law marriage as a legal instrument. The Empire State liberalized its alimony regulations to prevent demands upon men placed in prison who have no income.

Nevada, home of the six-week divorce law, was among the States taking no action on its statutes.

Speech Rights Of Howard U.'s Head Defended

Capital Teacher Says U. S. Federation Deplores Attack in Congress.

The American Federation of Teachers, at its annual session in Chicago, according to a report by Mary Mason Jones, president of the Washington Elementary Teachers Union, a delegate, last Saturday passed a resolution deprecating any attempt to curb freedom of speech at Howard University, with special reference to discussion in Congress of the recent baccalaureate address of Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, university president, and his mention of Communism.

The resolution, as adopted, follows:

"Whereas, the president of Howard University, Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, is being attacked for his academic freedom of thought; and

"Whereas, this latest attack, because of its reference to Communism, is being carried to the floors of Congress and coupled with an attempt to cripple Federal support of Howard University, foremost institution for training of Negro leaders; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the American Federation of Teachers reaffirm its stand in 1931 that there be no tolerance of an attempt to shackle freedom of thought and speech by American citizens, especially where such cowardice prevails that the cause of the material welfare of the institution is used to muzzle its responsible head."

Resolutions forwarded by the Washington union seeking Federal financial aid for schools throughout the Nation, and opposing discrimination against married teachers also were acted upon favorably.

Pilgrimage Honors Alan Seeger, Poet

Veterans Pay Tribute to 'Rendezvous With Death' in Foreign Legion.

Paris, July 2 (A.P.).—Allan Seeger's "Rendezvous with Death" was commemorated today by a pilgrimage of American war veterans to the battlefield where the New York poet and ten other Americans in the Foreign Legion fell 17 years ago.

Members of Trench and Air, association of former American volunteer combatants in the French army, placed a wreath at the monument to the war dead on the battlefield, which is at Belloy-en-Santerre (Somme). They also visited the Ossuary, at Lihons, where Seeger's body, never identified after the war, is believed to rest among those of thousands of unknown dead.

Seeger, celebrated for his verse beginning, "I have a rendezvous with death," was killed by a burst of machine gun fire when a regiment of the legion stormed German positions and took the village of Belloy-en-Santerre with a bayonet attack on July 4, 1916.

Alexandria Firemen May Go to State Meet

British Engineers Leave Soviet Soil

Two Recently Released as Trade Dispute Ended Start for London.

Moscow, July 2 (U.P.).—Two British engineers, released from prison yesterday, proceeded to Berlin tonight, on their way back to London.

The men are William H. Thornton and William L. MacDonald, of the Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Co., Ltd., convicted several weeks ago on charges of sabotage.

Their retention in prison here caused the British government to declare an embargo on Russian goods, pending their release. An agreement to lift the embargo and release the men was reached last week in London by Maxim Litvinoff, Moscow's foreign commissar, and Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, and normal trade relations are being restored.

Nazi Leader Favors Strong German Stand

Berlin, July 2 (U.P.).—The sword and thunderbolt, eliminated from the Prussian coat-of-arms, will be restored shortly, Capt. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Nazi leader, declared in a speech at Kolberg, in Pommerania, Prussia, tonight.

Goering spoke at memorial ceremonies recalling the city's stand against Napoleon more than a century ago.

"Germany wants peace," he added. "We do not want to attack—but we will not suffer being attacked."

The Federal Diary

By George D. Riley.

NO matter how severe the weather or many the calls, Miss Marietta H. Pierson, Naval Nurse Corps, in charge of the rest room, Navy Building, has been the friend of the sick at their work, in their homes and in hospitals.

Miss Marietta H. Pierson.

Every Sunday for years Miss Pierson has been a regular visitor to Mount Alto Hospital, a visitor to the sick. Miss Pierson has held a place of great love in the hearts of the Navy's women workers. Her thoughtfulness, her keen perception to do the little things that mean so much will live always in the memory of those she has helped to maintain health or to beat back toward recovery.

Saturday a large circle of friends gathered in the rest room at the Navy Department to pay homage to a departing friend, Miss Pierson, dressed in her natty uniform of white. She was retiring. They were there to say farewell.

"Many has been the time when Miss Pierson has dried our clothes after a drenching rain and pressed our hose and done all those things that have guarded us against serious illness," said one woman, whose face brightened as she told of Miss Pierson's work. Others had similar acts of kindness to relate, but it was time for the informal ceremony, presentation of a purse to their benefactor.

Miss Pierson is a past commander of Jane A. Delano Post, American Legion. She was appointed to the N. N. C. March 15, 1921. Service has been continuous. From March 27, 1918, to March 14, 1921, she was in the Army Nurse Corps.

Miss Pierson, The Federal Diary knows your diadem brightened with countless good deeds will be a shining beacon for your successor.

MANY American shells found their mark on the Western Front during the war with deadly precision largely through the careful preparation of the TNT and black powder mixed under the careful supervision of Capt. Evelyn Briggs Baldwin, explorer, scientist and inventor, recently ousted from his small job in the Navy Department. The case of Capt. Baldwin has been left to the White House for some form of recognition. What form it takes remains to be seen. The Federal Diary merely asks for Presidential appointment of Capt. Baldwin in a place where he can support himself in a fashion that befits a man of his worth.

It was Capt. Baldwin who brought order from chaos in the Philadelphia powder works, where he toiled almost around the clock daily. Correspondence had piled up with no system. Letters pertaining to property and personnel had no order. Capt. Baldwin was called upon to straighten the snarl, in return for which he was offered "any rank" he wished. He spurned rank but did the job of classifying correspondence to the Presidential taste. Then he went back to mixing powder, a dangerous job under any conditions. His was the task to see that the mixtures balanced according to formula and to see that the bags were airtight.

This is only one side of the career of Capt. Baldwin. His work has been varied and he has been master of every undertaking. He charted Franz Josef Land. He made soundings valuable to hydrographic work. The Soviets now claim that island group and have applied their own name of Nansen Land. They have established a base there and now mine coal.

Miss Dorothy Bates (*), popular young stenographer in the Tax Division, Justice, sought sunburn remedies before departing for a week-end trip to Colonial Beach.

THERE'S probably no connection—but, Saturday, the first day of the new fiscal year, a young man was stationed opposite Commerce Building on Fourteenth near the Avenue with a sign on his chest. "Free Mails," it read, "12 to 2 p. m." On his cap was "Volunteers of America." Well, the Volunteers have a big field, so the young man may be at some other building today . . . Mac and Martha, the McDevitts, to you, are hying away to Indiana and points in all directions to attend State conventions of rural letter carriers. And we'll tell you more shortly about Martha and Mac. They're doing a big work for the men out in the field who serve letters to men in the green fields and the Federal Diary wants you to know them better . . . Young man confides that since this agitation of finding a Washington beauty for the Atlantic City Pageant has started he has noticed lots of lookers here and abouts and then he hastens to seal us to secrecy, lest the wife hear. We'll add that if he's just finding it out he's needed glasses—"looking" glasses, please.

We got going early Saturday. Attended the testimonial ceremony for Miss Marietta H. Pierson, Naval Nurse Corps. Delightful affair . . . Speaking of law and lawyers, young Thomas Quincy Tilson 3d, Commerce Secretary's office, should be a good one. He takes honors as ace argumentarian on affairs of State among the plebiscites in Commerce.

Here is a specimen of what you can expect to hook in Chesapeake Bay during the Federal Diary first annual salt-water rodeo off Tilghman and Sharps Islands. It is a bluefish, the blueblood of the Eastern Shore. Reports show these fine fellers are starting to run in goodly numbers. The Federal Diary rodeo committee, Francis Barstow, chairman, plans an all-expense week-end of considerably less cost than the usual outing, complete with prizes.

By the way, Tommy recently completed first-year law at Columbus Law School. Grades? Excellent, thank you—at least Tommy admits it . . . Louis Krauss, Supervising Architect's office, Treasury, reported enthusiastic over the approaching Federal Diary salt-water rodeo, Tilghman, July 22-23. We're glad. It's the interest shown by good fishermen that will put their party in the class of worthwhile things . . . We know Bob Dillon, Commerce, well enough to say we can expect to see him back Wednesday from the Big City safe, sound and sober, despite the dangers of big city life.

FRANKLY, it looks like chiropractors are running the Government, not the Brain Trust. Adjustment for agriculture and recovery for industry. Now, if we get convalescence for rank and file of U. S. employes. Prewar stuff, prewar market prices. That's the first goal. Then, too, Mr. Hoover had his medicine ball Cabinet. Why not now a basket ball Cabinet? More goals to shoot for.

And if Agriculture's Assistant Secretary Tugwell could get his speeches through the mail a bit more in advance of delivery morning papers would have a better chance to play them . . . It's that extra exertion that makes the grade. Witness the case of Dick Sherwood, Federal Employment Stabilization Board. He can "take it." He's studying law this 95-degree weather at Washington College of Law. And when you recall that Dick, the future Mr. Chief Justice, only finished George Washington University evening classes last winter. Later we can say "we knew him when——"

Commerce's loss is Recovery Board's gain in the person of Miss Kay Johnson, tall, blonde, slender. A combination of intellect, beauty and poise . . . And now they say our economizing economists will add thousands to Federal payrolls . . . That's not what they told thousands on the rolls until recently. But of course, there are rolls and there are rolls.

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Bates, Justice, entertained Miss Nannie Maud Moore, Justice, and Earl Walck at dinner. Later in the evening friends from the Bureau dropped in with surprise packages containing everything from peanuts to the three blind mice. Everyone had a delightful time and we are hoping there will be more brides from the office. Miss Betty Bates, who was just graduated from Smith College, was at home and joined in the festivities.

Miss Moore and Mr. Walck were married at noon last Monday at Kappa Delta Sorority House, 1756 K street northwest.

HAVING been selected for retirement under provisions of the law affecting employes with 30 years or more of service, Charles R. Brown, in charge of the mail room of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Navy Department, was presented with a purse containing a substantial token of the esteem in which he was held by the personnel of that office.

Presentation was made by the Surgeon General of the Navy, Admiral P. S. Rossiter, who spoke eloquently of the many years of faithful and efficient service rendered by the retiring employe.

Brown's life has been out of the ordinary. Born on April 15, 1881, at Culpeper, Va., he was, at the age of 13, taken into the service of the late Admiral Presley M. Rixey, with whom he remained up to the death of the latter. As he grew older he was coachman for Admiral Rixey, while the admiral was personal physician to Presidents McKinley and Theoore Roosevelt.

While serving in this capacity Brown was closely associated with the children of President Roosevelt and accompanied Quentin, Archibald and Theodore, jr., on many excursions and outings. He also accompanied the admiral and President Roosevelt on hunting trips and was held in high regard by that energetic President.

Brown expects to be overseer for the estate of the late Admiral Rixey, which adjoins the Washington Golf and Country Club, Arlington County, Va., still maintained as a country home by Mrs. Rixey.

He was appointed July 29, 1902, to Naval Dispensary, transferred February, 1910, to Bureau of Medicine and Surgery. He is married and has three children.

As part of the program of retrenchment the United States Civil Service Commission has taken the following action:

Two men with at least 30 years of service were definitely retired (under previous action within the past ten days one man and seven women with at least 30 years' service were separated under the same condition). Ten men and two women with at least 30 years of service were retired temporarily with the understanding that they would be reinstated if conditions permit reinstatement.

Twenty-six women and 14 men whose husbands or wives are in the service were indefinitely furloughed until the commission is informed that the husband or the wife, as the case may be, is separated from the service or placed on indefinite furlough.

No decision has been reached on furloughs of the force retained. All members, including the commissioners, will be furloughed.

At Commerce:

Sergt. Ralph E. Dunston, of the guard force, has resigned. The sergeant, on the retired rolls of the Army, is a diplomat in every sense of the word. He will enter a service hospital for a general overhauling.

Two hundred and fifty employes, mostly women, left work late at night and even past midnight Thursday. No rest for the weary.

Miss Anna Hook and her pleasing-voiced switchboard force have more than plenty to do these busy days and nights. The work of these women has won high place in the esteem of Commerce employes.

If you've missed Mrs. Esther King(*) from her desk, you'll know I. R. B. has call on the services of one of the fastest and most accurate typists in the service.

Power Company Loses $1,424,382 Cost Claim

(Associated Press.)

Cost claims of the Washington Power Co. for its Chelan River project in Washington State were whittled from $11,067,055 to $9,642,673 in a decision announced yesterday by the Federal Power Commission.

The disallowance of the $1,424,382 was made up largely of amounts claimed for interest and taxes, the commission said, explaining the sums were claimed for "unused capacity" and "not in conformity with the Federal water power act and unsound in principle."

Power companies operating under Federal license are required to submit claims for their investment cost, which figures are used in rate-making bases and security issuance.

Whist Trophy Won By Lenz and Ward

Hanover, N. H., July 2 (A.P.).—Officials of the American Whist Congress announced today that Sidney S. Lenz, veteran international-ist, with Henry H. Ward, of Boston, had won the congress trophy.

Lenz also finished first in the Manhattan trophy contest with the president of the Women's Whist League, Mrs. W. B. Thompson, of Racine, Wis., as his partner.

Although many of the ranking players of the world took part in the contract, auction and whist sessions of the congress, Lenz was the only international authority who took part in all events for the ten-day period.

Mrs. Thompson also was a double winner on the last day, for she paired with Mrs. O. S. Baylies to win the New Amsterdam Trophy.

Wedell Wins Fastest Race In Speed Hops

Minor Gets Second Place in $2,500 Contest During National Meet.

Municipal Airport, Los Angeles, July 2 (A.P.).—Jimmie Wedell, New Orleans pilot-designer, flew off with honors at the national air races which drew a crowd officials estimated at 38,000 today. Many aces paraded their speed.

Wedell shot around ten laps of a 5-mile course at an average speed of 207.46 miles per hour to win the fastest race yet run. Had he not been forced to fly several pylons wide in lapping his field, it was conceded he would have added many miles an hour to this figure. On one lap he averaged 270 miles per hour.

Just as the sandy-haired Southerner was dipping across the finish line to the accompaniment of cheers from the crowd, the red monoplane of Amelia Earhart, transatlantic woman flier, roared in from the East and landed here at 5:15 p. m. (Pacific standard time).

Miss Earhart Flies In.

Miss Earhart, a contestant yesterday in the transcontinental speed dash which Col. Roscoe Turner, of Hollywood, won in record time, with Wendell second, dropped out at Wichita, Kan., far behind the leaders. She left there at 6 a. m. (Pacific standard time) today, making the trip from Kansas to Los Angeles in 11 hours 15 minutes.

Wedell flashed his speed in the final race of the day, a 50-mile contest for planes with engines of 1,000-cubic inch displacements. He used the famous "44" red and black low-wing monoplane in which he flew in the cross-country dash and the victory made him the second largest money winner of the races.

The first prize of $1,125 gave Wedell total prize money thus far of $3,375. Turner, by winning the cross-country race, took in $5,050, and Wedell got $2,250 for second place.

A Hollywood movie flier, consistent winner throughout the races, gave Wedell a chase for a few laps, but his lower-powered plane could not match the speed of the Louisianan and the pilot, Roy Minor, took second place in the $2,500 race and prize money of $625.

Tied for First Place.

This victory tied Minor for first place in the points for the final sweepstakes award with George Hague, a Los Angeles sportsman flier, whose entry this year was his first in a major meet. Each had 13 points, although Minor had won $2,050 in prizes and Hague, flying a still smaller plane, had accumulated $1,235. In second place in points was Ray Moore, Oakland, Calif., flier, who had nine and prize winnings of $1,400. Art Chester, of Joliet, Ill., was in third place in points, with seven. He won $440.

Other point standings were Wedell, five; Lee Miles, of Los Angeles, with winnings of $220, and S. J. Wittman, of Oshkosh, Wis., with winnings of $200, each four; Gordon Israel, of St. Louis, three, and winnings of $300, and Lee Schoenhair, of Los Angeles, former transcontinental speed ace, two, with winnings of $250.

Three races were run today, Wedell winning one, Minor winning another, the 550-inch engine race of 50 miles at an average speed of 196.95 miles per hour, and Chester the third, a 30-mile race, with an average speed of 146.43 miles per hour. The last race was for 375-inch engines.

Chester won, although he flew five laps of the six-lap race in last place. Three other fliers, Miles, Hague and Wittman, apparently confused on the number of laps to be flown, turned only five, and automatically were disqualified.

Mystery Murder Baffles Officers

Steubenville Steel Mills Worker Slain by Pair in Automobile.

Steubenville, Ohio, July 2 (A.P.). Officials of two eastern Ohio counties were baffled today in their efforts to solve the murder of James "Jerry" Magnone, 34, of Yorkville, shot down in the town's main street as he walked to his work in a steel mill.

Two men in an automobile hailed Magnone. As he approached the auto, they opened fire. Magnone fell, shot six times through the abdomen. The auto sped south toward Martins Ferry.

Tonight Sheriff Ray Long of Jefferson County called on Belmont County officials to join with him in the search for the killers. No motive had been established nor any clews uncovered.

Earth Speed Shames Fliers

Astronomer Finds Globe Is Whirling Around Center of Its Star System at Rate of 9,000 Miles a Minute.

Pasadena, Calif., July 2 (A.P.).—While fliers at the National Air Races are trying to push past 300 miles an hour for new records, the earth is speeding through space at a clip to make this seem a snail's pace.

Prof. Alfred H. Joy, astronomer at the Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson Observatory, said today he had found the earth is whirling about the center of the galaxy, its star system, at a rate of 9,000 miles a minute.

It also is revolving about the sun at 1,110 miles a minute, besides turning about on its axis once a day.

In his observations, made by determining the radial velocities of the distant cepheid variable stars with the 100-inch telescope, Prof. Joy obtained new evidence that the galaxy is like the far-away spiral nebulae, other star systems, photographs of which show them to resemble great, spinning pinwheels.

They are unlike pinwheels, however, in that the stars near the center are turning about it more rapidly than those at the outer edges.

"This swifter turning about the center already has been observed in the planets in their revolutions about the sun," Prof. Joy said. "Mercury is whirling about the sun at a rate of 30 miles a second, the earth at 18½, and Pluto, the most distant planet, at only about two miles a second, requiring 250 years to complete one journey around the sun."

He made his observations of the sun in connection with the galaxy, but said the earth, relatively, is so near the sun that approximately the same figures apply.

Court-Martial Follows Peru Troops' Mutiny

Iquitos, Peru, July 2 (U.P.).—The court-martial of Lieut. Hildebrando Tejedo and noncommissioned officers involved in a revolt at Ramon Castilla Barracks last Wednesday started here today.

The mutineers attacked the aviation quarters, wounding Commander Alba Saldana. The reason for the mutiny has not been clearly established, although it is known that participants were intoxicated.

Souder's Rites Will Be Held This Morning

H. L. Watkins, Montgomery Farmer, May Succeed Commissioner.

Harry L. Watkins, a farmer, of Cedar Grove, Md., is being prominently mentioned by Democratic leaders as the probable successor to Montgomery County Commissioner Archie W. Souder, who committed suicide Saturday night.

Funeral services for Mr. Souder will be held at 11 a. m. from his home in Damascus, Md. Burial will be in Damascus Cemetery. The members of the Montgomery Board of County Commissioners will act as honorary pallbearers.

Mr. Watkins, it is understood, will receive the indorsement of the Montgomery Government Club for the vacancy on the county board. Mr. Souder was chosen over Mr. Watkins for the last vacancy.

The suicide of Souder was attributed by his family and friends to worry. He was worrying, they said, because he believed that he would not be given back his position as cashier of the Bank of Damascus. He had been unable to work because of illness.

Prisoner Accused Of Posing as Police

Rosslyn Man Also Struck Officer Investigating Case, Is Charge.

Charges of impersonating an officer and assaulting an officer were placed against Woodrow Rucker, 20, of Rosslyn, Va., last night, after, it is alleged, he attempted to arrest another man as a hit-and-run driver.

According to Andrew J. Smith, of Union Springs, N. Y., he was stopped near Rosslyn by Rucker, who said he was "wanted for hit-and-run." Smith asked Rucker to show his badge, he said, and drove off when the latter failed to produce it.

Later Smith called the Arlington County jail. Policemen Edward Duncan and A. D. Langley were sent to investigate. Rucker was located, and upon seeing Policeman Duncan, is alleged to have struck him with a club. He was later identified by Smith in the jail as the man who stopped his car. Duncan was not seriously injured.

Bump Costs Eyesight, Another Restores It

New Fund Aids Colonization of German Jews

Zionists Seek $8,000,000 to Send Persecution Victims to Palestine.

Chicago, July 2 (A.P.).—Jews of America were called upon today to raise $8,000,000 toward a "four-year plan" of colonization in Palestine as a haven for persecuted members of their race.

At the thirty-sixth annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America a resolution was adopted proposing the fund, naming Dr. Chaim Weizmann, former president of the World Zionist Organization, to take the lead in the plan and appealing to interested governments and the League of Nations to put it into effect.

The resolution was presented by Louis Lipsky, national chairman of the American Palestine campaign, and was intended, he said, particularly to provide a refuge to German Jews.

Rabbi Stephen Wise, of New York, addressing the organization, declared the meeting was "the first important meeting of American Zionists since the Hitler catastrophe befell Germany."

Erskine's Funeral To Be Held Today

Rites for Former Head of Studebaker, Suicide, to Be Private.

South Bend, Ind., July 2 (A.P.).—Funeral services for Albert R. Erskine, for many years president of the Studebaker Corporation, who committed suicide in his home here yesterday, will be held tomorrow afternoon and will be strictly private.

Tributes from hundreds of fellow townsmen and scores of nationally known persons, including leaders of the automotive world, poured into Twyckenham Manor today to the widow and adopted son, Albert Russel, jr. With the survivors are Mr. and Mrs. James Garland, of Elmira, N. Y., brother and sister-in-law of Mrs. Erskine, who were visiting here at the time of the suicide.

Friends of the motor magnate attributed his act to financial worries and poor health, occasioned by the recent receivership of the Studebaker Corporation, of which he had been president since 1913.

Flying Ahead of Rainstorm, First Lady Returns Home

Mrs. Roosevelt Arrives to Make White House Ready for the President.

(Associated Press.)

Flying ahead of a rainstorm, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt returned to Washington yesterday from her trip to Campobello Island, N. B., where the Roosevelts have a summer home.

After but two days' stay here, Mrs. Roosevelt is scheduled to go to New York to see her son, Franklin, jr., off for Europe on a vacation trip. He is expected to reach here today for an overnight stay.

Mrs. Roosevelt's announced plans then called for her to join her friends, Miss Nancy Cook and Miss Marian Dickerman, on another vacation trip by automobile, which again was to terminate at Campobello, where Mrs. Roosevelt intends to help her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Elliot Roosevelt, "get settled" for the summer.

The President's wife has been almost a steady traveler in her "mother-of-a-large-family" role.

She motored to Campobello to open the Roosevelt summer home for the President and his son, so that it might be pleasant for them on their arrival from their cruise northward aboard the Amberjack II.

She returned to the White House ahead of the President to prepare again for his return.

Then, too, shopping for Franklin, jr.'s European trip has demanded her attention.

Her next family duty, at Campobello again, will be performed for the wife of the son who is now establishing a residence in Nevada preparatory to a divorce.

Beauty in Buildings.

Exercising its authority to pass judgment upon the designs of private structures facing public grounds and public buildings, the Fine Arts Commission is considering the architectural plans of the Church of the Reformation, to be erected on East Capitol street between Second and Third streets. The church will face the Folger Shakespeare Library and will be adjacent to the Library of Congress and the United States Supreme Court building. The Folger Shakespeare Library, privately endowed, is regarded as one of the most beautiful buildings in the United States.

The vagaries of private enterprise are sometimes expressed in astounding architectural atrocities, designed for business convenience or advertising advantages, or both. Full license to rugged individualism is proper when the public interest is not affected. But there can not be full license to destroy the beauty and harmony of the Federal City, whose public buildings and surrounding grounds represent the investment of millions of dollars. Guardianship over the development of the National Capital from the standpoint of beauty and appropriateness is vested in the Fine Arts Commission. It has faithfully performed its duty in withstanding the pressure of private enterprise wrongfully directed. By tactful revision of architectural effects to conform to Federal building plans the commission has preserved the spirit of beauty without imposing unnecessary burdens upon private enterprise.

A Requisite of Recovery.

The cotton textile hearings this week before the Industrial Recovery Board have served to focus public attention on an important feature of the sweeping mobilization program which was generally neglected in the Congressional debate.

George A. Sloan, President of the Cotton Textile Institute, was emphatic Tuesday in his demand that if the industry cooperates wholeheartedly in the program to advance domestic prices and wages, which means higher production costs, the American market shall be soundly and adequately protected against new floods of imports from Europe and the Orient.

"The radical changes proposed in the conduct of the industry mean increased costs," Mr. Sloan told the Industrial Board. "By other activities of the government, we are faced with an increased cost of raw materials. While it is desirable to increase the purchasing power of the cotton farmer, we must be sure the increased costs are not curtailing consumption."

In exploring the possibilities of intensified competition from the cotton mills of China, Japan, India, and the economically prostrated Balkan countries, Mr. Sloan told the board that Japanese mill operators now are working for a few cents a day. Manning the most modern machinery, these workers are able to turn out substantially a competing cloth at far below the present American cost. Any further increase in American production costs must operate, of course, to increase the advantage of these foreign spinners in the rich markets of the United States.

President Roosevelt is vested by the recovery act with broad powers to protect the American market. The textile manufacturers are anxious that their new code shall contain some definite and legal assurance that these powers will be called into play should conditions warrant. On this point, every other major industry is watching the cotton hearings with profound interest, for it has been announced officially that the textile code is to serve as the model for all other industries.

American industrialists are reluctant to bind themselves legally to the new code until they have some positive assurances that the obligations assumed thereunder to increase domestic production costs will not cause them to lose their home markets to a flood of sweat-shop labor products from Europe and Asia.

Ending Slavery.

One hundred years ago slavery was abolished in Great Britain. The famous English abolitionist, William Wilberforce, died in July, 1833, a few weeks before Parliament passed the bill which marked the fulfillment of his life work. Every civilized nation in the Western world is free from the evil of slavery.

There remain, however, sections of the world where traffic in slaves is still a lucrative business, and it is estimated that there are no less than 5,000,000 persons in such bondage. In an effort to abolish slavery in every part of the world, the League of Nations at its next session will establish a permanent commission to further the work of abolition. It is felt that the very existence of this commission should be useful in keeping public interest awake on the subject, especially in countries where slavery exists.

The commission will turn its attention especially to Saudi Arabia, in an effort to bring it into line with Afghanistan, Persia and other Moslem countries that have forbidden slavery. Though the Koran expressly sanctions slavery, it also emphasizes the desirability of freeing slaves. This latter point will be stressed, as will also the example of Nepal, which abolished slavery in 1926.

Though outright slavery exists mainly in Africa and the Near East, "debt slavery" survives in many countries. Debtors in some parts hand over themselves or their dependents, when unable to met their obligations. Giving over children for "adoption" is frequently a method of cancelling a debt. An effort to stop this practice has been made in Ceylon, China and elsewhere.

Machinery and Labor.

As the hearing on the proposed code for the cotton manufacturing industry came to a close a very important question was left undecided. How far shall the Government go in regulating competition among the units of an industry? The industrial recovery act does not answer that question. It merely provides that the President may impose such conditions upon industries adopting codes as will protect consumers, employees, competitors and the public interest in general.

Discussion at the first hearing centered on wages, hours of work and child labor. It is taken for granted that all of the codes approved by the President will include agreements on these elemental subjects. But how much further should they go? Labor is complaining about the so-called "stretch out" system. If minimum wages and hours are established, labor spokesmen say, employers may require their workmen to tend more machines and thus evade one purpose of the law which is to create more jobs. Consequently, the representatives of labor seek to incorporate in these codes provisions against the "stretch out" system. A committee is investigating that point for Gen. Johnson.

Closely allied to this issue is the question of installing new labor-saving machinery. The textile manufacturers suggest that a provision be included in the code of their industry requiring each factory to register its machinery with the administrator. That official would be given authority to regulate the installation of new machinery, except for replacement, through the issuance of certificates or licenses. The growth and improvement of textile plants would thus be strictly under the thumb of Uncle Sam.

If the codes of fair competition now in the process of formulation are to be of a temporary nature, existing only for the period of recovery, this question may not assume serious proportions. But if they are to be permanent, as many industrialists seem to think, the fixing of the number of machines that each employee might tend and control over the installation of new machinery by governmental decree might halt the growing productivity of labor and leave industry in a static condition. It is needless to point out that such results would be disastrous ultimately for both capital and labor.

The use of labor-saving machinery is probably still in its infancy. Improvements along this line are made every year. The seriousness of halting progress toward the manufacture of more goods with less effort and at lower costs can be realized only by looking back over the past decade and counting the conveniences and luxuries that would today be denied the average workingman if the Government had stepped in to prevent factories from using more machinery or increasing the productivity of labor.

Saving Historic Shrines.

It is gratifying to note the interest which is manifested in America's historic buildings. Even in this period of economic unrest the work of preservation is going on in many places that are rich in American tradition. The passing of each year opens to the public new opportunities to observe the living conditions of former times and to absorb some of the atmosphere in which famous Americans carried on their work.

In New York the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society is renovating and conditioning the old home of Alexander Hamilton. Hamilton Grange has stood in Convent street since 1802. It will now become a museum dedicated to the portrayal of living conditions in the days when Hamilton directed the finances of the infant republic.

One of the most interesting projects of this kind undertaken in recent years is the restoration of Williamsburg, Va., the ancient capital of the new world. The old Colonial capitol is being rebuilt on its ancient foundation. The whole town is being restored to its quaint beauty of former centuries. Williamsburg is to become another historic shrine of the type that every American will wish to see. Yorktown in the same vicinity underwent a general rehabilitation two years ago, when the 150th anniversary of Washington's victory over Cornwallis was celebrated. This section of the Old Dominion is one of the richest historical regions in the United States.

Wakefield, the birthplace of Washington, has been restored after many years of neglect. Valley Forge has become a most delightful park. A patriotic group in Philadelphia has finally succeeded in isolating the Betsy Ross house from ramshackle buildings that surround it, thus removing part of the danger that it may be swept away by fire. Hundreds of structures where significant events of American history have taken place are still allowed to deteriorate, but the people are slowly coming to realize the value of these patriotic shrines. Each passing year strengthens the demand for their preservation.

Virginia has been specially active in preserving architectural relics of the past and in marking the historic spots within her borders. Virginia is rich in the lore of America. Who can estimate the value to the American people of Mount Vernon, Monticello, Williamsburg, Yorktown, Fredericksburg or Appomattox? In these and many other sacred spots the memory of America's great men and women is enshrined and the stories of American achievement are told. This heritage ought to be preserved.

Golf and the Law.

A New York State judge has awarded $750 damages to Miss Anne B. Gleason, to be paid jointly by Arthur J. Knorr, a golf player, and the Hillcrest Golf Course at Jamaica, where he drove a ball which was taken up by the wind and diverted to the windshield of the sedan in which Miss Gleason was driving along a public highway. The ball splintered the glass, and flying particles lacerated both of Miss Gleason's eyelids. She brought suit against the golfer and the links for $1,000 damages. The defendants declared that the ball was driven straight down the fairway, and that the gust of wind which carried it off its course was "an act of God," for which neither the player nor the links could be held responsible.

The learned judge explored the tomes of the law for precedents, and found an English case, Castle vs. St. Augustine's Links, in which the King's Bench division decided in favor of a cab driver who had been struck by a ball while near the course.

"The game of golf is fundamentally honorable," said Judge Pette. "It is sportsmanlike, and has nothing normally unlawful or hazardous about it. But a golf ball, when driven, though in full compliance with the rules of the game, attains great speed and may thus become a dangerous and destructive object and may strike with great violence and force. The element of danger, though not intrinsic in the game itself, is nevertheless present. The situation is not changed by the fact that the act of propelling the ball is, in itself, not wrongful."

The gist of this decision, which seems to be applicable to players and links everywhere, is that a golf player may indulge in a fundamentally honorable sport, always observing the rules, and may swat the ball as vigorously as he likes, straight down the fairway, and yet may become liable for damages to passers-by if natural forces send his ball in the wrong direction. Golf players, in short, must guard against the vagaries of nature if they are not to incur penalties for injuries inflicted upon innocent bystanders or wayfarers. This is a newly defined risk, of ominous significance to all but expert players, and perhaps even to them.

Traffic on July 4.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

Next Tuesday will be the Fourth of July. And, on next Wednesday the newspapers of the country will tell their dolorous tale of the most tragic day of the year in traffic. Heightening the tragedy of its performance on this worst of its driving days is the fact that it all is so unnecessary. All authorities are agreed on that. They point out that on no other occasion is a figurative red flag of danger so conspicuously waved in front of motorists. Yet, on no other occasion is the warning signal so flagrantly ignored.

What, specifically, leads traffic to disaster on the Fourth of July? Two things. One is congestion. The other is speed. Every one is going somewhere on the holiday. Moreover, every one is anxious to get there as soon as possible, remain until the last minute, then turn around and hurry home at top speed. The stage thus is set for trouble.

There is very little the individual can do to overcome the fact of congestion. To be sure, he can modify its effects somewhat by selecting a secondary route to his particular destination rather than follow the main highway. There are limitations upon this procedure, of course, for alternate routes are not always available.

The other factor is the more controllable one. Any driver can adjust his speed to conditions. Furthermore, he can be reasonably certain that the adjustment is going to mean no loss of time, for the careful driver in congested traffic usually makes the same average speed as the one who alternately flies and crawls along. There remains the danger that the other fellow will not similarly adjust his speed, and the careful driver is under a burden of responsibility to keep a weather eye constantly peeled for the disaster that lurks in the recklessness of others. It is easier to do this when his own car's speed is under control.

The worst of the July Fourth traffic accidents are those which happen late at night. A tired world moves homeward, physically and mentally unfitted to control an automobile moving at high speed. Yet the desire to make time is so strong that it impels the average motor car operator to cast discretion to the winds and step hard on the accelerator. Let him think of this. He has only to respect the danger signs which are so conspicuous in order to remove the black border from the red letter day which is the Fourth of July.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

Beauty in Bleak Surroundings.

Six tulips blossomed in a row.
Not many, as tulips often grow,
And later, as sped the month of May,
A peony clump bore blossoms gay,
Scarce thirty feet of lawn was seen,
Yet what there was from weeds was clean.
And through the summer bits of phlox
Vied with geraniums in a box,
Adding their color and their grace
To what had been a dreary place.

There is no doubt that garden small
Seemed scarce worth mentioning at all,
But when elsewhere you turned your eye
And only bleak neglect could spy,
When end to end upon that street
Your gaze but ugliness could meet,
That peony gay, those tulips few,
That tiny lawn loomed large to view
And told a culture and a care
Which lived undaunted by despair.

If a Madman Cuts Himself With Knives, Is It the Fault of Providence?

By Robert Quillen

THE world is filled with suffering. Men spill one another's blood with bayonets. Gangsters rob and kill. Innocent women and children beg for bread. Crippled children hobble on crutches. The strong oppress the weak. Everywhere is tyranny and injustice and misery.

And those who can not think clearly observe these things and cry: "How can a merciful God permit such things! Surely no just God would make such a world as this."

They are tricking themselves. Their eyes deceive them and they blame God for the work of man.

Divine power could prevent man's follies only by miraculous interference. And then man would move as though hypnotized, obeying a will not his own, and his virtue would be that of a robot. He would not be a man, but a machine.

Man is free to do right or wrong as he will, and the world in which we live is the product of his choice.

We see little of God's world. The world that dominates our lives—the world of great buildings and wonderful machines and marvelous inventions—seems to us the only world there is. Therefore we call it God's world and blame God for its faults.

But this is the world that man made, and all of its evils are the work of man. Its cruelty and injustice and poverty and crime are man's work. And the diseases that destroy man are products of the world he made.

You must get away from towns to find God's world—the world that is natural.

In the wilds of eastern Asia an explorer recently came upon a primitive people among whom was no disease—not even the common cold.

In the South Seas, early adventurers from Europe found a gentle and beautiful race that had no acquaintance with diseases or the white man's lusts and passions.

No germ can live in open air and sunshine. Diseases breed in the filth and squalor and darkness of civilization. They are products of the world man made.

Examine any evil you will—whether the horror of war or the misery of the poor or the suffering of the oppressed—and you will find that man alone is to blame. His own folly and lust and greed cause every misery his kind endures.

We could make the world an Eden if we would. The task would not be difficult. Nothing would be required except to do the things we know are right and quit the things we know are wrong.

The evils in the world are the result of deliberate effort. We suffer as no other creatures do because our breed alone violates nature to do itself injury.

Political Comment

Child Labor on the Way Out.
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Persons interested in social justice have long dreamed of the day when child labor would be eliminated from industry, perhaps by action of the States, perhaps by ratification of the child labor amendment, or by congressional vote. Few could have been so imaginative as to vision the day when it would be done by agreement among the employers themselves. Yet this is about to happen in the cotton textile industry, long a vicious field of exploitation, and the portents are good for similar action in other lines. It is the industrial recovery act that has made this possible. Secretary Perkins made the suggestion, and Administrator Johnson presented it for acceptance by the textile men as part of their governing code. After some skirmishing, a majority of them agreed to it.

Industry's self-discipline is preferable to legislative enactment in this matter. Strict adherence to the code will make statutory action unnecessary, save for those fields of industry that can not be reached under the recovery act. Since about 4 per cent of the workers in Southern cotton mills are children under 16, with about half that percentage in the North, the effect of eliminating these young workers should be speedily felt. Educational and health standards will improve, and more work will be provided for adults.

Unguarded Frontiers.
Boston Transcript.

Norman Davis may follow the injunction of the President and tell the disarmament conference at Geneva that he saw with his own eyes what a boundary without fortifications means. He may add that the relations of the United States and Canada constitute "perhaps the finest example of personal friendship between nations that there could possibly be." But unfortunately there is no immediate prospect of unguarded frontiers in Europe.

The President, when he spoke of the picture of amity and good will that Mr. Davis might place before the delegates at Geneva, was responding to the welcome given him at Campobello Island. It was natural on such an occasion to speak of the friendship which for more than a century has precluded the idea of warlike operations along the unfortified boundary between Canada and the United States. Europeans may see in the picture the embodiment of an ideal they would wish to attain. But European countries have not yet outlived racial and national animosities that had their origins long centuries ago. For Europe, a frontier still implies that behind it should be force ample for its protection.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Outcome of Recovery Act Problematical, But Cooperation Obviously Necessary.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What the ultimate effects of the national recovery act will be, no one is really in a position to give an authentic opinion.

In the meantime, we must all cooperate if any degree of success at all is anticipated, for if we all do not pull together in the same direction, the results obtained may be disappointing.

The act must be regarded candidly as a stick of dynamite. I say this because if it is not a success, then the reactions may be as damaging as dynamite.

Quick cooperative action on the part of labor, industry and those representing outside interests affected, is essential.

Clever women need not swelter into slimness in a rubber girdle this Summer —because Kleinert has punched tiny holes in this new reducing girdle. There is rubber to take the pounds off—but plenty of chance for air to circulate and keep one cool. Lined with stockinette that absorbs moisture and is soft next to the skin. Lightly boned in front. The Meanderer

Tells of Yachting Costumes and Quick Sun-Tan Creams in Stores.

Just picture yourself drifting lazily or floating merrily on the Fourth in one of the several yachting costumes the Meanderer has found—one of sailor boy fashion of white silk, another of skipper fashion of trig coat and slacks, and still another of ladylike lines for the evening party.

The white silk yachting costume has trousers that are a simulated skirt — or a skirt that simulates trousers. There are yards of width in the lower edge of the garment, where folds standing still look just like a pleated skirt, but look like trousers if the wearer does any climbing, or a horn-pipe while celebrating the Fourth.

The top of the white silk yachting costume is like a middy blouse, and it tucks in or flies out.

Cotton knit slacks that fit so smoothly, as slacks for women so seldom do, and a trim, skipperish jacket—the whole rig in navy or in red or green—with flat shining metal button closing the coat in nautical fashion, is another holiday costume fit to give one that exalted, just-right feeling, and stimulate patriotism.

Then for the evening aboard ship the very new, heavy linen evening dress, with its only gesture toward covering the upper back a nonchalant loose tie across the shoulder blades, is absolutely new.

If to date, town and parties and shopping have been your routine—not beach loafing—then you'll need to get a sun tan pretty fast to match some long on holiday. For the quick sun-tanned look there is a brown cold cream—gypsy sun tan cream, a world-famous cosmetician calls it. She has cleverly prepared it to protect your skin from burning, to help tan it evenly. You may ask for products of this sun tan cream nature in several department store toiletries sections.

Among the cleverest and cheapest of the beach bags are those known as "melon bags." They are round, sometimes striped, like a melon, though often the pattern is a prim chintz instead of stripes. Rubber lined, of course, are these new beach bags. They cost just 85 cents.

A small bag fitted with containers for beauty creams and protectors taken to the beach may be a practical accompaniment for the "melon" bag. The diminutive toiletry bags cost $1.

A sun oil made by a famous French coutourier once cost a prohibitive sum, but is now in a sizeable bottle for $4. A Russian perfumer makes a fragrant sun oil—the odor of which outdoes any of the protective sun oils—and this new oil costs $1.50.

New Reich Church Told to Use Care

Opposition to Hitler Is Not to Be Countenanced, Pastors Warn.

Berlin, July 2 (A.P.).—Prussia's Protestant congregations, meeting for the first time under auspices of the new Nazi Church regime, were warned today that opposition in any form would not be countenanced.

An episcopal letter read from the pulpits said: "Until the great hour when the constitution for the Protestant Church of the whole Reich is ready, acts of opposition, regardless of their course, remain acts of disobedience against the good intentions of the government."

Joachim Hossenfelder, head of the Nazi German Christian movement and recently named vice president of the Evangelical Supreme Council, delivered a sermon in the same vein.

"Perhaps Jeanne will join us for doubles—wonder where she is?" asks the young woman in the flock dot dimity frock. Red and white are the colors. Blue and white seersucker is worked into a sporty little frock and jacket with belt and linings of blue handkerchief linen. The sleeves are elbow length.

"How about some golf?" asks another hotel guest. "It's too cold up here to enjoy swimming and isn't it a relief from the city heat?" Her frock of white matelasse wool is trimmed with bright hunter's green and white striped silk and big green buttons. "Here comes Jeanne—she looks tired."

"Tired? My dears, I'm utterly exhausted—in the words of Judy's latest slang, 'I'm simply japped!' I've ridden all over these mountain roads on the worst bicycle!" Over her white-ribbed wool frock, with split skirt, she wears a coat of dusty orange that is ravishing with dark hair and fair skin.

Pale lemon yellow is striking in a hand crocheted frock with a square yoke and one large pocket. The homespun coat is in a matching shade and features a sailor collar. When in doubt about a hat select a casual "pancake" type with a shallow crown. This one is of panama.

What Today Means

By Mary Blake.

"CANCER."

STRIVE as you will for perfection on this day, the chances are that you will make more than the usual number of errors; influences operating will tend to lessen the resulting penalties. It is possible that you will have a very satisfactory talk with a friend who will give you good advice in regard to a problem of a personal nature.

The child born on this July 3 will seem always to be fascinated by danger; on more than one occasion you will have to pluck him out of situations serious in nature. He will lack all fear. It is possible that this child will advance faster if not entered too early in school.

If July 3 is the date of your birth, you will probably not embark on any business venture that will require your absence from home for any length of time. Your real pleasures come from your associations with family and friends. You will never feel happy in business nor will you be able to fully subscribe to some of the methods followed in the acquisition of the almighty dollar. You will miss out on many a good deal because of your unwillingness to "push another man to the wall," or to act in any manner not in absolute accord with the dictates of your conscience.

Born on July 3, you are essentially an optimistic person; your good cheer is catching and quickly spreads to others. The women are particularly energetic and in their homes are always busy cleaning, washing, cooking or fixing up something to help some one in distress. Busy as they invariably are, they seem always to be able to take on added duties.

Culbertson's Bridge

By Ely Culbertson.

A PSYCHOLOGICAL RAISE.

MR. JACOB SICHERMAN writes me from Buffalo that they play a great deal of Bridge at the Montefiore Club there. He laments that they do not always play with the elegance of experts, but says that the games there at least do not lack verve and animation. Particularly is this true, he declares, when George Carmichael Raikin, a lawyer of Buffalo, sits in at the Bridge table. Mr. Sicherman, playing with Mr. Raikin, recently picked up this strong hand. He was South and vulnerable.

Spades	A K 10 9 5
Hearts	A 10
Diamonds	A K 10
Clubs	A K Q

Mr. Sicherman bid two spades, West passed, and Mr. Raikin, sitting North, responded with the minimum two notrump. Of course, South had a phenomenally strong two-bid, including 7 honor-tricks. Perhaps it would have been the counsel of wisdom to bid three notrump and cash the game and rubber, but Mr. Sicherman says that he felt fairly safe in giving his partner plenty of rope, so instead of three notrump, he bid three spades. His partner's response was five spades and naturally the Opening bidder then bid a Grand Slam.

The Opening lead was a diamond and North laid down this Dummy:

Spades	J 8 7 4 3
Hearts	K 9 7 5 2
Diamonds	5
Clubs	8 4

The spade Queen dropped and the Grand Slam was a laydown.

Then followed a rather heated post-mortem. Both opponents told Mr. Raikin exactly what they thought of such bidding. Mr. Sicherman entered the argument and gave his own mental reactions to the bidding. He said that when he made his bid of three spades, if his partner had called three notrump or four spades that would have ended it. After the two notrump response to the Opening Forcing bid, the only way the Slam could have been contracted for was precisely the manner in which it was.

In analyzing the situation, Mr. Sicherman thinks that the five-spade bid was perfectly sound. North had said that he did not have one honor-trick plus and adequate trump support. The lack of honor-tricks, of course, could be no surprise to South. Another bid from him below the game level would simply tend to show a preference for notrump or spades as a final declaration. The analysis goes on that with North's holding and a Rebid of the spade suit by the Opening bidder, a contract of five spades should be safe, even with a minimum Opening Forcing bid. Mr. Sicherman waxes enthusiastic over his partner's bid, but the other members of the club, particularly the East and West players, insist that North was just a trifle mad. Mr. Sicherman himself is somewhat doubtful, but insists that if there was any madness, it was madness touched with genius.

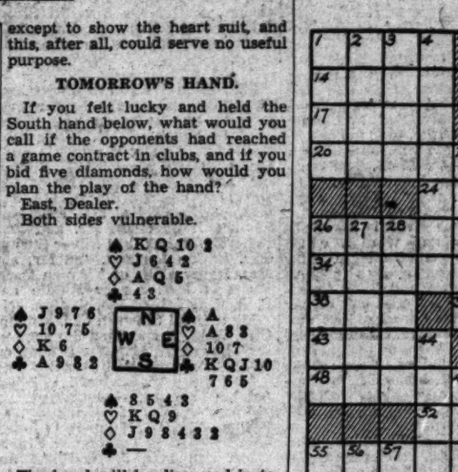
In considering the case, I am inclined to think that the five-spade bid, while very unconventional, has much to commend it in view of the previous minimum response. No other bid short of game is available except to show the heart suit, and this, after all, could serve no useful purpose.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

If you felt lucky and held the South hand below, what would you call if the opponents had reached a game contract in clubs, and if you bid five diamonds, how would you plan the play of the hand?

East, Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

How to Get Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

SOME FOOD FLAVORS.

ABSOLUTELY pure milk is wholly devoid of odor and almost negative as to taste. Most of the flavors of milk are due to absorption. When a certain large city was passing from a poor to a better phase of evolution of its milk supply, a woman physician with a large practice said her patients objected to the new and regulated milk. Pressed for details, she said they objected to it because it was odorless and tasteless. Her patients had learned to like the rich, barnyard flavor of the old-time product.

R. M. Washburn now comes forward with a suggestion. Having taken away the barnyard flavors, and having a product that is too negative in odor and possibly also in taste for most palates, he suggests that we give appealing flavors to milk by feeding cows small quantities of pleasing flavors that will pass their aroma on to the milk.

'Possum hunters have long known that one way to improve the flavor of the meat of that animal is to pen him up for a few weeks, during which he is fed fancy foods. Some fish specialists pen up fish and feed them foods chosen because they make the fish a table delicacy. Dr. Washburn's proposal has some basis in food practice.

The odors and tastes of milk are largely acquired. Some are absorbed in the icebox. Some are acquired in dairies and stores. Dr. Washburn cites, in support of the latter statement, the odors of country general stores, particularly noticeable when the store is first opened in the morning. Milk exposed in such stores picks up some of the odors of tobacco, kerosene, and miscellaneous smelly merchandise.

Cows are quite subject to halitosis and they do not use any of the mouth washes so extensively advertised. The halitosis odors from the cow are liable to be absorbed by milk.

Among illustrations of odors given to meats by the foods eaten by animals, Dr. Washburn gives the following:

The iodine taste and odor of Hebrides sheep fed on sea weed.

Chickens that have eaten onions smell of onion as do the eggs they lay. Eggs from hens that have eaten May flies have a fishy taste.

Wild ducks taste of fish. The meat of tame duck is flavored by the food it has consumed.

Hog meat is often flavored by hog food. Hog fat is changed by a soy bean diet.

Dr. Washburn proposes that cows get a little orange peel in their diet, or other aromatic peels or other pleasing aromatic flowers and plants.

The Mode . . . . . Dare

THE fight against pessimism is one of the forms of courage. And Paris does her gallant bit to lighten the outlook of the world by retaining all her charm and elegance—in fact, by making a decided effort in the direction of more elegance.

Ball after ball, affair after affair, and the races, of course, a national institution, waft feminine elegance before the tired heart of the world. The Ambassadeurs for instance, had an "organdie bal," which was like a picturization of a dream of charm and fluttering loveliness. A Worth gown in white tucked organdy was one of the smartest dresses, and a bit patriotic, too, with its red, white and blue taffeta ribbon belt which closed in front of the gown, letting a long end reach down to the hem.

The Paris races continue to be pageants of elegance. And while Paris took sports wear from America, America is taking race togs from Paree—where a fluttery organdy afternoon gown and big hat was once an outrage at an American race, this season it is quite au faut and even better taste for the sophisticate than the too youthful sportswear of the knock-about variety. After all, spectators are not the players, are they! And one is more comfortable and surely lovelier in one's box or stall "dressed up" than one is hanging onto the rails in tweeds!

So-o-o-o-o, the sleeve making-over business being as complicated as it is, and as interesting as it is . . . and as what have you as we need, we thought you would need, too—so we just made you another leaflet on the skubjekt . . . as wee mamzelle says—(when we don't catch her). So a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post will bring you the illustrated leaflet telling you how to make over sleeves that you never dreamed could be made over. Just send for it and see!

One of the indications of this interesting return to elegance is in the formal evening gowns and wraps. The well-known family of Fouquieres, in Paris, recently had a wedding—and mademoiselle selected for her trousseau the black velvet evening coat which I have sketched for you today. She would not have selected it had she not anticipated occasions on which it would be worn! So she did, and there will be, and I thought you would like to see it. Molyneux is the designer, and indeed, Mlle. Fouquieres made quite a selection of Molyneux models for this famous trousseau.

Radio Dial Flashes

By Robert D. Heinl.

SCIENTISTS were afforded plenty of thrills at the meeting of the Institute of Radio Engineers and affiliated societies of the American Association for the Advancement of Science as a feature of A Century of Progress in Chicago last week.

Dr. Vladimir Zworykin started the ball rolling by describing the new "electrical eye," which he is perfecting, and which it is claimed, may solve the television problem. Not only can this "electrical eye" "see" but it can "remember" and may be the means of our seeing events from our homes in addition to listening to them as we do now.

Another sensatton was 10,000,000 volts of man-made lightning, capable of delivering flashes greater than most of the discharges of natural lightning. President Karl T. Compton, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said it provided a "battering ram," the greatest ever attained, artificially, for breaking down the walls imprisoning the almost unlimited energy in the inner core of matter.

Last, but by no means the least, was a description of the new "ionosphere" measuring rod, another step in man's conquest of space, described to the radio engineers by T. R. Gilliland, of the Bureau of Standards, here in Washington. This is said to be an electrical "Jacob's Ladder" on which man can climb to the outer regions of the "ionosphere" 550 miles up and map out with his delicate measuring tools the unexplored regions in the three shelves of radiant energy surrounding our planet.

Three other Bureau of Standards scientists, L. V. Berkner, S. S. Kirby and D. M. Stuart, described other recent studies on the "ionosphere."

"ROMANCE of the People," one of the most elaborate musical pageants ever staged, will be broadcast over WJSV from A Century of Progress, Chicago, at 9:45 p. m.

More than 3,500 actors and musicians will participate in the spectacle, under the direction of Isaac Van Grove, conductor of the Chicago Civic Opera, who recently won national acclaim with his operatic version of "The Emperor Jones." The scenes will be enacted on a stage 200 by 150 feet, erected in the center of Soldiers' Field.

The presentation will climax national Jewish Day at the exposition. Jewish leaders from all parts of the United States and Europe expected to be in attendance are Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, Gov. Julius L. Meier of Oregon, Gov. Arthur Seligman of New Mexico, Dr. Stephen S. Wise. Louis Lipsky, Felix M. Warburg and Dr. Cyrus Adler. Judge Harry M. Fischer, of Chicago, is chairman of the committee.

An attendance of more than 100,000 is expected.

Emily R. Kneubuhl, executive secretary of the National Federation of Business and Prefessional Women's Clubs, will be the guest in the Women's Radio Review over WRC at 2:30 p. m.

THE Gypsies have gone to the Century of Progress exposition and will present their weekly broadcasts from the fair grounds each Monday evening beginning tonight at 8 o'clock. The Gypsies will give twice-a-day concerts for visitors at the A. & P. carnival on the exposition grounds during July, August and September.

With Harry Horlick, conductor of the Gypsies Orchestra, are Frank Parker, tenor, and 25 musicians. Their first program from the fair grounds tonight will include such old favorites as "Tales from Vienna Woods," "Blue Danube," and "Old Refrain."

Zeke, of the hillbilly team of Annie, Judy and Zeke, is having his own troubles these days finding moss for his horned toad. He brought this odd pet with him from the foothills of Georgia when the outfit came North to broadcast. Zeke says if you want to find out how rare moss is on Broadway just go out and try to find some.

Elsie A. Mathews, soprano, will be heard over station WRC for the first time at 5:30 p. m. Miss Mathews recently graduated from the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, completing a scholarship which she won in 1931.

"THE New Meaning of a Safe and Sane Fourth of July" will be explained by Sylvan King over WOL at 7:15 p. m.

Helen Grace Carlile, author of "Mothers Cry" and "We Begin," will discuss the early days of America over Station WJSV at 4:45 p. m., under the title "Courage Is Our Tradition."

A revival of "David Garrick" will be the Radio Guild play this afternoon. Written by Thomas W. Robertson, "David Garrick" first appeared in 1864 at the Haymarket Theater in London. The elder Sothern played the title role. Charles Webster will be heard as Garrick in the radio adaptation of the play, which will be broadcast at 3 p. m. over WMAL.

A talk on "The Guidance of Adolescence" will be the subject of Dr. Valeria Parker, director of community organization for the American Social Hygiene Association (WJSV, 10:30 a. m.).

Compositions of George Gershwin and Ferde Grofe, exponents of the higher jazz, will be features of the concert numbers by Paul Whiteman, with Deems Taylor as master of ceremonies, tonight at 8:30 over a WEAF network, which doesn't include WRC.

BOTH WJSV and WRC will carry portions of the National Education Association program at Chicago, the former at 3 p. m. and the latter, with the address of Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, at 5 o'clock.

The "Hot From Hollywood" presentations, featuring songs and gossip of the Hollywood film colony by Irving Kaufman and music by Abe Lyman's Orchestra, have been renewed for the summer months.

Starting tonight "Hot From Hollywood" will be broadcast Mondays and Wednesdays at 7:45 and will return to a three-a-week schedule in the fall.

The last seven welter championship bouts have all gone to the challenger. Al Ivins, well-known trapshooter of a decade ago, dreamed twice that he would win the Grand American Handicap on his birthday—and he did. On his fifty-second birthday he broke the first 52 clay pigeons, missed the fifty-third, and then broke all the rest, to score 99 out of 100.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

NEW YORK—A novelist friend informs me that he has come quite a cropper with his usual idea of life. Despite the philosophic attitude which is supposed to characterize his craft, he has just about lost complete faith in humanity.

The royalties from his books supply him with a fair amount of revenue, still it is not so large that he can afford to squander the small bundle of shillings his publisher sends around on the first of the month. It so happened this way:

This youthful writer is convinced, mostly by a few frank and unsparing words in critical reviews, that he will never be an affluent best seller.

So he depended for his future well being upon the kind hearts of several uncles and aunts, all of whom are swamped with so much wealth that they resemble a group of understudies to Croesus.

In order to maintain himself in the role of favorite nephew, this writer has gone out of his way considerably and at more expense than he could afford to make sure that his wealthy relatives would have a happy time when they came to New York.

Just as Insurance.

Would there arrive an uncle or aunt from their country estate, the scribbler would see that they had seats for hit shows, ringside seats at night clubs and other such items which are supposed to make more pleasant the elan side of life in the big city. It was really more than he could afford, but he comforted himself with the belief that it was merely casting bread upon waters.

Only a fortnight ago the first of the uncles died and all he bequeathed his attentive nephew was a dress suit (slightly used). A few days later an aunt passed on and her will offered him a set of Joseph Conrad's novels and a letter admonishing him to be wary of the pitfalls of a material life.

It is just possible that when the other moneyed relatives come to town again they will discover their erstwhile hospitable nephew withdrawn, with his dress suit and set of Conrad, into a seclusion that would amaze even a hermit.

Banks at Martinsburg Pay $12,700 Dividends

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 2.—Approximately $12,700 was mailed to holders of shares in Martinsburg banks here yesterday.

The dividends' total, in keeping with governmental advice and because of taxation, has been considerably reduced in comparison with former years. The new excise tax, recently set by the Federal Government on corporation dividends, took another 5 per cent of the dividends, except where held by corporations.

THAT youth from the Pacific slope, the prize ring's latest, greatest hope, how strangely he upset the dope, just recently! He met the pilgrim from the Rhine, and promptly telescoped his spine, and Germany took in its sign, quite decently. This lad from Livermore, this Max, he seems to thrive on swats and whacks, you can not dent him with an ax, he's durable; at times he's fooled around and stalled until his conduct rather palled, his fool behavior oft was called incurable. But now he's shown the carping guys that he can be exceeding wise, and he assumes heroic size, and majesty; he's shown he can be safe and sane, that he has symptoms of a brain, who seemed so frivolous and vain, and bad-jesty. And while he travels up the line I hope he'll try to be as fine as that brave pilgrim from the Rhine who bowed to him; if he's as modest and serene, as free from habits base and mean, then all the gents who love the clean will crowd to him. For Schmeling is a decent sport, an athlete of the better sort, of whom there's never been report that wearied us; when there was any hide to tan he did it by an honest plan; we've boosted him to any man who queried us.

Producers Plan Increased Output for 1933-34

Major Powers Greatly Boost Play Schedules

Paramount First With 300; Other Leaders Closely Bunched Behind.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Echoes of the Inaugural theme song, "Happy Days Are Here Again," evidently ringing again in their ears, and their fears assuaged with regard to the probable functioning of a code of practice and operation under the Industrial Recovery Act, being administered by Gen. Hugh Johnson, the motion picture producers, almost as if actuated by a single common impulse, are increasing production all along the line for the new season of 1933-34 and promising the industry's high peak of achievement for that period.

From advices so far to hand, Paramount will lead the pack with a total output of approximately 300 releases for the impending twelvemonth—65 full-length feature productions and 229 short-reel subjects, to be exact.

RKO-Radio announces 52 features and 106 shorts; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, a cursory resume of whose plans was set forth in this space a few days ago, will release 48 features and 105 short-reels; Fox declares its purpose to distribute 54 features and an indeterminate number of supplementary films of various footages, and Universal has in view 42 features and 111 of the shorter films.

These pretentious programs will reflect the major activities of the foremost stars and featured players known to the cinema, augmented by a goodly number, no doubt, who are not so well known and only now are emerging from the novitiate's obscurity to make their first bids for recognition, fame and fortune.

Among the pictures that Paramount is particularly stressing, at the moment, may be mentioned Marlene Dietrich's "Song of Songs," in which she will be supported by Brian Aherne, remembered as the Robert Browning with Katherine Cornell in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Lionel Atwill and Alison Skipworth. Frau Dietrich will later be seen in two productions directed by Josef von Sternberg, her discoverer, and the man under whose guidance her screen fame has been principally compiled.

Then there are two from Mae West, "I'm No Angel," and "It Ain't No Sin;" Maurice Chevalier in "The Way to Love," with Sylvia Sidney and Edward Everett Horton; the Four Marx Brothers in "Duck Soup," and the much-discussed production of Lewis Carrol's whimsical classic, "Alice in Wonderland," which Norman McLeod will direct, with Charlie Ruggles, Alison Skipworth, Mary Boland, Charles Laughton, Jack Oakie and an unknown feminine player, now being sought with the aid of public newspaper appeals throughout the United States for the title role.

So far, among the preferences expressed to this department, Washington's preponderant choice for the role of Alice is Helen Hayes, with Helen Chandler, Janet Gaynor and Marian Nixon closely bunched for second place and a few straggling votes for Marion Davies, Josephine Hutchinson and Ruby Keeler.

But to return to the Paramount list, "The Search for Beauty" is being acclaimed as a novelty which will enlist the services of 15 of the most beautiful girls to be found in the world and an equal number of the handsomest men, to be determined in an intensive international contest.

Noel Coward's "Design for Living"—which bids fair not to be Noel Coward's by the time it reaches the screen—Rupert Hughes' "Fifty Years From Now," Fredric March and Claudette Colbert, in "Death Takes a Holiday," and Dorothea Wieck, star of "Maedchen in Uniform," in her first American picture, "White Woman," with Charles Laughton, Herbert Marshall and Walter Abel, and "Cradle Song," her second vehicle, all are among Paramount's current enthusiasms.

The Fox pronunciamento, as communicated to this department with slight indirection by Sam Wheeler, manager of the Washington branch exchange of that company, places less emphasis upon titles, but presents with no little impressiveness the following studio directory that will participate actively in making the Fox program one of preeminent personnel: Vera Allen, Heather Angel, Lew Ayres, Warner Baxter, John Boles, Clara Bow, El Brendel, Irene Browne, Marion Burns, Madeleine Carroll, Henrietta Crosman, Florence Desmond, Louise Dresser, James Dunn, Sally Eilers, Norman Foster, Henry Garat, Janet Gaynor, Lillian Harvey, Leslie Howard, Elissa Landi, Myrna Loy, Boots Mallory, Herbert Marshall, Jessie Matthews, Adolphe Menjou, Colleen Moore, Ralph Morgan, Herbert Mundin, Philip Merivale, Marion Nixon, George O'Brien, Warner Oland, ZaSu Pitts, Kane Richmond, Will Rogers,, Sid Silvers, Harvey Stephens, Valerie Taylor, Spencer Tracy, Claire Trevor, Conrad Veidt, June Vasek, Harry Woods, Victor Jory, Preston Foster, Raul Roulien, Mimi Jordon and Beryl Mercer.

Not entirely carried away by this glossary of greatness, Mr. Wheeler takes time out to draw a deep breath and mention the following as productions worthy of the earnest consideration of every judicious amusement-seeker: Lilian Harvey's first American-made picture—to match Fraulein Wieck's, no doubt—"My Lips Betray," with John Boles and El Brendel; "Pilgrimage," with Henrietta Crosman, Marian Nixon, Norman Foster and Heather Angel; "The Power and the Glory," a Jesse L. Lasky production, featuring Spencer Tracy and Colleen Moore, and "Berkeley Square," starring Leslie Howard, with Heather Angel, Valerie Taylor and Irene Browne.

Detailed report on other company plans, I am afraid, will come dragging along through this space for a week or so yet.

If they do, don't say I didn't warn you!

Speaking of Henrietta Crosman—her name is up above there, somewhere—an apparently prevalent impression that her adventure in "Pilgrimage" will mark her first personal contemplation of the glories of being perpetuated in shadow is not strictly accurate. It was Miss Crosman, you will recall, who gave such a splendid performance as the imperious Fanny Cavendish in Paramount's screen version of Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman's "The Royal Family," with Ina Claire, Fredric March and Mary Brian.

And about this Leslie Howard, who recently completed the Fox camera version of "Berkeley Square" and departed for England and a country home 25 miles outside of London that he owns, but has never occupied, prior to undertaking the stellar duties falling to his lot under the terms of a five-year screen contract with the Warner Brothers, either he is being faultily quoted or can't quite make up his mind, how he actually regards the celluloid forms of drama. Yesterday's gazettes seemed a trifle at variance in the matter.

Mr. Howard was quoted locally as having said: "They shouldn't adapt plays. Of course, there's a dearth of original writers and the producers are on fairly safe ground when they work on a successful play. But as a rule the picture retains all of the technical stiffness of the play and loses its quality."

Marguerite Tazelear, interviewing Mr. Howard for the Sabbath issue of the New York Herald-Tribune, quotes him in these words: "I'll admit that I don't think screen stories have anything to do with the stage as a rule. But I'd rather see a good play faithfully transferred than see a bad picture based on other writing."

If you have been under the mistaken notion that "Yankee Doodle" George Michael Cohan is the only Irish-American decoration of the American stage who is entitled to the right to wave the flag by virtue of having been born on the Fourth of July, this is not too early to learn that 53 years ago tomorrow in a modest little home at No. 60 Third avenue, in New York, two other proud parents were receiving the same sort of congratulations as were being showered on Helen and Jerry Cohan up in Providence, R. I.

These parents were Mr. and Mrs. Pat Rooney, the first. The son who had just arrived was Pat Rooney, the second. There is now, as you know without being told, a Pat Rooney, the third.

All of these Rooneys are born with dancing feet. The present Pat, senior, has no peer in the waltz clog. Pat, III, is following closely in the footsteps of his dad.

Together they are at Loew's Fox this week, headlining the Independence Day stage show and tomorrow there are going to be natal-day doings that will be worth remembering. Pat, pere, will be 53 years old tomorrow—and if you think he looks it, acts it or dances it, you're practically crazy!

To make the day complete, Mrs. Rooney, wife and mother of the present team, is coming down to add her presence, and her presents, to the celebration. As Marion Bent, she was for years, before Pat III broke into it, her husband's partner in the famous vaudeville team of Rooney & Bent. Her retirement is still a source of regret to all of the old guard and many of the new.

Always alert to such opportunities, the Loew officials in Washington are going to see to it that Pat Rooney's fifty-third birthday will be one that he will remember for the next 53 years of his life!

That stranger you may have observed pinchhitting for Freddie Clark on the conductor's stand at the Earle every time the Gertrude Hoffman Girls made their appearance at the first Friday performance had a right to be there. It was Max Hoffman, husband of Gertrude Hoffman and a former conductor for the Ziegfeld and Shubert productions, back in the days when his wife was one of the foremost dancers on the American or any other stage.

Mr. Hoffman flew down from Philadelphia for the first performance of the "July Frolic" at the Earle, and flew right back again as soon as it was over. He was conducting "Shady Lady" in Philadelphia, and took advantage of the Friday afternoon opening in the Capital.

The star of "Shady Lady," incidentally, is Helen "Poo-poo-pa-Doop" Kane, daughter-in-law of Max and Gertrude Hoffman. It will be recalled that Miss Kane and Max Hoffman, jr., were married during her last appearance at the Earle, not so many months ago.

Seventy years ago today the battle of Gettysburg was still raging.

Imitation of a Male Sextet!

Wallace Warns Against Unjust Price for Bread

He Plans to Employ "To Limit" Wide Powers in Processing Tax.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Wallace, in an effort to prevent consumer resentment against the farm relief act, has indicated a decision to employ "to the limit" the powers provided him to ward off "unreasonable" increases of retail prices in the wake of new processing taxes.

This was made known yesterday in high Agriculture Department quarters, and administrators looked for an initial test to follow imposition of the tax of 30 cents a bushel on wheat, effective at midnight, July 8.

One plan under consideration yesterday would result in the labeling of every product manufactured from wheat to show the exact amount of the tax that could be passed on to the consumer. Thus a pound loaf of white bread in the near future may carry a little paper notice reading:

"The processing tax on wheat added .483 of a cent to the cost of this article."

2 Conversion Factors Listed.

Here are conversion factors listed yesterday by the Internal Revenue Bureau, showing how much the processing tax on wheat amounts to for products manufactured from it, which will be the basis on which the floor stock taxes will be collected, all in terms of pounds:

Flour—Whole wheat and graham, .500 of a cent; all flour except whole wheat and graham, .704 of a cent; semolina and farina, .704 of a cent.

Cereal preparations—Whole wheat type, including those chiefly of whole wheat, .500 of a cent; all others except those consisting chiefly of bran, .704.

Bread—All bread except rye, .483 of a cent; rye, .360; zwieback, .462; rolls and coffee cake, .483.

Crackers, .690 of a cent; pretzels, .732; Macaroni and spaghetti, (except canned), .750; canned macaroni and spaghetti, .188; noodles, .714; paste, .557, and foundry molding materials, .396.

Price Increase Powers.

Mr. Wallace has a variety of powers to deal with price increases. He called attention to his authority Friday in a telegram to the Iowa Bakers Association, protesting their projected increase of bread prices from 5 to 8 cents per pound loaf, effective July 5.

Meanwhile, the Bureau of Internal Revenue already has assumed its task of collecting the tax. Forms for the enforcement of flour tax provisions were dispatched, requiring returns from approximately 35,000 bakers, between 400,000 and 500,000 retailers and about 4,000 millers.

When the tax goes into effect to finance acreage reduction among wheat farmers, it will apply not only to wheat entering mills to be ground into flour but also upon stocks of products processed from wheat held by millers and bakers.

Stocks held by retailers are exempt from the tax for 30 days, but retailers are required to file by August 7 an inventory of their stocks on hand as of the start of business July 9.

The Internal Revenue Bureau said yesterday "all retail stocks held on July 9, 1933, which are still on hand at the end of 30 days from that date, are taxable in the hands of the retailer."

Jersey Woman Doctor Is 3,000,000th at Fair

Chicago, July 2 (A.P.).—Dr. E. T. Lila Burke, 58, of Morrison, N. J., today was the three millionth visitor to pass through the gates at the World's Fair.

her cousin, Miss May McLaughlin.

Dr. Burke was accompanied by of New York, and a friend, Miss Mary Gorman, of Lenox, Mass. Fair officials and a guard of honor from the Belgian Village met the visitors, gave them tickets to various concessions, and invited them to dinner.

Glen Echo Park.

A heat-stifled city sent throngs to Glen Echo Park over the weekend, where they found many means of keeping cool.

One of the most popular spots was the Crystal Pool, which did a land office business. High up on the big coaster dips there was no heat problem, and this old reliable was in the spotlight of popularity along with the airplane swings, old mill and other thrillers.

Saturday night the Spanish garden ballroom attracted throngs to its air-cooled interior. Sunday was unusually populous with picnic parties, who made the resort their rendezvous, until the showers interfered.

Nats Are Rained Out And Lose Half Game

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

EN ROUTE TO NEW YORK, July 2.—Winging eastward tonight for a triumphant entry into New York, the Nats face much serious league business at hand at Yankee Stadium, on Tuesday, in the form of a July 4 double-header with the Yankees, who are coming back to their home hearth a second place team, with their once proud lead of six games having faded into less than nothingness.

Yankee Stadium on Tuesday will be the scene of the most important skirmishing in the American League race thus far, as the Nats engage in hand-to-hand conflict with the tottering champions of 1932, who slumped from the saddle in their ill-fated invasion of the West and now are laboring in the wake of the Washington club, a half game behind the lead.

New York is the Nats' last port of call before returning for a long sojourn in the Capital, which they left three weeks ago a second-place club with no indication that they would overhaul the Yankees in the West, the perennial graveyard of Washington pennant hopes.

Complexion Is Changed.

But the Washington Club that Manager Joe Cronin led into the West underwent a complete transformation to change the complexion of the pennant race, which had begun to assume a distinct Yankee hue. For the first time since the pennant winning years of 1924-1925 the Nats played like a good road club, winning twelve of their fifteen games in the inland sector and now showing a record of seventeen victories in their last twenty starts, which accounts in a great measure for their triumphant entry into Gotham in the morning.

Developments of the last three weeks have transformed the American League into a two-team race, with the issue now squarely between the Nats and the Yankees. The Athletics, in third place, are now nine games behind, virtually out of the running. The Nats have the Yankees to beat and vice versa. It's a two-team battle down the stretch to October 1.

Manager Cronin tonight boldly switched his pitching plans for the twin bill against the Yankees and decided to send his two regular southpaws, Earl Whitehill and Walter Stewart, against the Yanks. Cronin had planned to pitch Al Crowder in one of the games, but has now decided to withhold Crowder for possible relief duty inasmuch as today's rain in Detroit made Stewart available. With such left-handed sluggers as Ruth, Gehrig, Combs and Sewell in the Yankee batting order, the Nats' manager is playing the percentages

Yankees Win Over Tribe by 7 to 3

Chapman, Dickey, Sewell Lead 15-Hit Attack in Series Finale.

CLEVELAND, July 2 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees whittled Washington's lead in the American League pennant chase to half a game today by beating Cleveland, 7 to 3, while the Nats were rained out at Detroit.

The victory was New York's third in the four-game series.

The Yankees got 15 hits and hit safely in every inning behind the pitching of Walter Brown and Moore, Brown receiving credit for the win.

Chapman, Dickey and Sewell led the attack with three hits each. Chapman doubled in the first, and Dickey in the third, and each repeated with a double in the ninth to bring Yankee runners across the plate.

Ruth Only Gets Single.

Ruth was able to get only a single, which led to a Yankee run in the fifth, and Gehrig went hitless. The Indians used three pitchers, Mel Harder, Sarge Connally and Willis Hudlin, in an attempt to halt the onslaught.

The game was halted 50 minutes in the third inning by rain.

18 Scoreless Innings for Hubbell

Sets Big League Record for Year as Giants Beat Cards, 1-0.

NEW YORK, July 2 (A.P.).—In what was probably the greatest exhibition of hurling seen here in a good many years, the Giants took a pair of 1-to-0 decisions from the St. Louis Cardinals today to go 5½ games ahead of the second place club.

With 45,000 fans cheering him on, Carl Hubbell blanked the Cards for 18 innings of the opener, which was the longest game played in the major leagues so far this season. Leroy (Bud) Parmelee followed by allowing only four blows in the regulation nine innings and fanning 13.

Hubbell gave up only six hits in his double duel and didn't issue a pass. Tex Carleton opposed him for 16 frames on even terms before he was lifted for a pinch hitter.

Critz's Hit Decisive.

Jess Haines followed. In the eighteenth he started by walking Joe Moore. Gus Mancuso sacrificed Moore to second. Travis Jackson, pinch-hitting for Blondy Ryan, was purposely passed, and when Hubbell forced him at second, Moore reached third. Hughie Critz, with the count three and two on him, smashed a single through the box to bring home Moore with the winning run.

The 17 scoreless innings came close to the major league record. In 1918 Pittsburgh and the Boston Braves played 20 innings without a tally, the Pirates winning 2-0 in the twenty-first, and Detroit and Washington played an 18-inning scoreless tie. The record length for a 1-0 inning is 18 innings, equaled in today's battle.

Quarter-Finals Scheduled at Wimbledon

Vines and Mrs. Moody Both Picked to Score in Today's Matches.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 2 (A.P.).—England's traditional observance of the Sabbath kept competitors in the All-England Tennis Championships on the sidelines today but hostilities will be resumed tomorrow with principal attention fixed on men's singles.

All four quarter-finals in this division will be played with Ellsworth Vines, American champion and defending British title-holder, engaging Roderich Menzel of Czechoslovakia, and Lester Stoefen, giant Los Angeles player, battling Henri Cochet, ace of French tennis.

The other two matches will send Jack Crawford of Australia, recent conqueror of Cochet for the French hard court title, against George Patrick Hughes of Great Britain, and H. W. (Bunny) Austin of England, against the little Japanese, Jiroh Satoh.

Vines Heavy Choice.

The experts figure Vines an almost-certain winner over Menzel but Concede Stoefen no better than an even chance against Cochet. Avowedly aiming at another meeting with Vines who beat him in the Davis Cup challenge round last year. Austin and Crawford will start as favorities against Satoh and Hughes.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, defending the women's singles title, faces Lolette Payot of Switzerland in a quarter-final round match and is expected to win decisively. The other survivors in this division include Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Calif., Lucia Valerio of Italy, Margaret Scriven and Dorothy Round of England, Mme. Rene Mathieu of France and Hilda Krahwinkel of Germany.

The young American combination of Clayton Lee Burwell of Charlotte, N. C., and David N. Jones of New York will play the Veteran Frenchmen, Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, in the third round of men's doubles.

Athletics Split Pair With Browns

Macks Win First, 6-5, in Tenth, Then Lose, 11-6; 4 Homers for Foxx.

ST. LOUIS, July 2 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Browns split a double-header today in which Jimmy Foxx, Athletic first baseman, spanked out four home runs, two in the first game, which the Athletics won, 6 to 5, and a pair in the nightcap, which went to the Browns, 11 to 6. Foxx's total for the season was boosted to 24.

In the second contest the St. Louisans pounded heavily at three of Connie Mack's pitchers, Cain, Peterson and Coombs, gathering six runs.

The Browns took advantage of a change of pitchers by the Athletics in the ninth inning of the first game to tie the score. Chick Mahaffey was pulled and Bob Grove sent in. Carl Reynolds and Ted Gullic immediately singled, tying the score. But singles by Mickey Cochrane and Dib Williams of the Athletics, in the tenth, broke the deadlock.

Carnera Bout With Baer Sought

Rosoff Offers Champ $150,000 for Match to Benefit Jews.

NEW YORK, July 2 (U.P.).—Prospects of a Primo Carnera-Maxie Baer heavyweight championship battle in September were believed considerably brighter today. Sam Rosoff, millionaire subway contractor, is trying to arrange the match for the benefit of Jews in Germany.

Although Carnera's manager, Louis Soresi, rejected Rosoff's first offer of a $150,000 guarantee for the champion's end, Rosoff, a former Russian emigrant boy, who became one of New York's wealthiest and most influential men, usually gets what he goes after. He has the money and connections to put over such a match.

Soresi claimed today he would not accept less than $500,000 for Carnera's end of a match with Baer, which means probably that he would like to get about $250,000. Rosoff would like to have the match staged under the joint promotion of Jack Dempsey and Madison Square Garden.

Carnera With Garden.

It seems virtually impossible to arrange it otherwise because the Garden has Champion Carnera under contract until December, 1934, while the Baer outfit is stringing along with the former Manassa Mauler.

There's little likelihood that Primo will sail for Italy on July 8, as originally planned. The big fellow will open a three-day engagement at Atlantic City's steel pier tomorrow, after which he may accept a four-week's theatrical engagement in New York. He has been offered $8,500 a week, but Soresi wants $10,000.

Meanwhile, Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, and Jack Dempsey are arranging another tour for the conquerer of Max Schmeling, and tomorrow Hoffman expects to close a contract for Baer to make a movie in Hollywood.

Many Offers Received.

"We don't care whether Baer meets Carnera in September," Hoffman said. "We have so many offers for Maxie's services that he should earn as much before September as he would in a bout with Carnera, in which we would take the challenger's end of 12½ per cent.

Soresi threw cold water on the proposed Carnera-Max Schmeling bout in Rome this September. He said: "After the way Schmeling gave us the run-around when he was champion, I see no reason why we should help him or his manager, Joe Jacobs, by giving Schmeling a crack at the title. We might fight some other heavyweight in Rome, such as Paolino Uzcudun, of Spain.

Sarazen and Cotton Are Joint Favorites

Some of St. Andrews Residents Express Discontent Over Decision to Charge Admission to Annual Play.

By Frank King.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 2 (A.P.).—Revolt was in the air over ancient St. Andrews tonight on the eve of the British open golf championship, because the historic links have been fenced in and an admission charge of a half-crown will be levied on every person watching play this week. For 500 years at least St. Andrews' linksland has been free open space for the townspeople, who, with their babies, their older children, their dogs, have watched world famous golfers make their greatest shots.

They were prepared to watch another crack field, including 17 Americans, compete for Britain's greatest golfing prize starting tomorrow. But that has been changed.

Elaborate arrangements, made to prevent a recurrence of the mob scenes when Bobby Jones won the British amateur crown here in 1930, have ended the carefree atmosphere of St. Andrews golf. Some of the townsfolk don't like the arrangements and today, while the links were closed on account of the Sabbath, there were rumblings and murmerings of discontent, with reports that the championship committee may encounter trouble extracting half-crowns (about 54 cents) from the natives of Fifeshire.

Cathedral Riot Recalled.

It was recalled that enraged mobs destroyed St. Andrews Cathedral in one day during the strife and destruction of the Reformation period, but no John Knox has arisen to incite malcontents now and authorities have few doubts as to the success of their plans.

Adoption of a special act in the British Parliament was necessary before admission could be charged for watching golf at St. Andrews. Controversies as bitter and numerous as those of the World Economic Conference have been raging here. The latest came to a climax yesterday when English and Scottish professional teams went off to Edinburgh in a huff and played their annual match there after a misunderstanding with St. Andrews authorities over the gate fee requirements.

Steward's 80 Wins Medal Play-Off

John Connelly Is Beaten by Six Strokes in Test at Congressional.

By Dave Herman.

LUTHER STEWARD, jr., former Congressional Country Club champion, was declared winner of the medal prize in his own invitation golf tournament yesterday when he defeated John Connelly, of Rock Creek, by six strokes in the 18-hole playoff.

Finishing in a driving rainstorm that swept upon both contestants as they drove off on the fifteenth hole, Steward carded an 80 for the route, while Connelly shot an 86.

Steward and Connelly tied for qualifying honors in the invitation event with cards of 73 each.

The Congressional star managed to keep a straighter line than his opponent on the majority of holes, and went to the turn, leading by four strokes. Steward shot a 40 for the first nine, and Connelly a 44.

Coming home, Steward maintained his lead by virtue of more consistency off the tee and a better brand of putting.

Using a combination of borrowed clubs and some of his own, Connelly ran into trouble on the first hole when he three-putted for a 6. Steward took a 5. The diminutive public links star did not have a putter to start, and had to use one of Steward's putters until his own was turned over on the fourth green.

Shots Off Tee Are Wild.

An epidemic of hooking overtook Connelly, and his tee shots found the rough time and again. On the eighth hole Connelly, 4 strokes behind, had a grand chance to make up a few strokes. He made a beautiful second shot to within a few yards of the green, while Steward was trapped on his second, but a bold approach proved costly, and he halved the hole in par 5's.

Steward was never behind. He added to his margin on the eleventh when Connelly hooked into the rough on his drive, and took a 6 as Steward got a 4.

Connelly's finest shot of the day came on the 367-yard fifteenth. Here he smacked a brilliant 275-yard down the fairway, made a splendid approach, and got his par 4. Steward took a 5.

Belmont Stake Winner Has Slight Edge on Broker's Tip.

Head Play Is Third, With Mr. Khayyam Next on the List.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 2 (A.P.).—Inactivity and failures to win on the part of leading 3-year-old thoroughbreds during the past three weeks have left unchanged the relative standings in the race for 1933 money winnings.

Mrs. Silas Mason's Head Play, winner of the Preakness, picked up $1,000 for finishing third in the Latonia Derby Saturday. The victory of M. L. Schwartz's Gold Basis in the Latonia fixture, gave him a 1933 total of $9,575, but this was insufficient to place him among the leaders.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

ARLINGTON PARK, JULY 2.

DEAR AL:

If I can only start this week off like I started last, everything will be tomatoes. We made more than expenses last week, however, without cutting down the overhead and we'll be right out there battling them tomorrow. The least said about Saturday's results the better. The mud came up and left Mrs. Bennings' lovely youth out on the limb. However, I went through the books from cover to cover tonight. Here's what I can out with.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—SPOILT BEAUTY, the cleverly named Schwartz colorbearer, appears to be the likely winner of the opening dash, which draws maiden 2-year-olds to the post. Ran a fine race in his debut. DAWN CHILD and BARKANTINE for the other money places.

SECOND RACE—Morsun will enjoy running on any kind of an off track. If the course doesn't return to a fast condition this one has a good chance of getting home a sizeable odds. SONG HIT and UNCLE HENRY for the rest.

THIRD RACE—BORDER KING beat a fair field in New York and may be the one to sneak home ahead of this group. ESSIE WESSIE and BROWN TONEY for the place and show awards.

FOURTH RACE—What a spot for ANITA ORMONT to come sailing home. She is no great shakes, but could give this field a going over if sent with a purse in mind. OLD DEPOT and ESSARE appear most likely to cause trouble.

FIFTH RACE—I'm taking the Labrot representative, DAMASCENE. This one ran a powerful race the other day. My old friend ROCK POINT may have a say in the distribution of this coin. HERNANDO is far too sharp to be entirely overlooked.

SIXTH RACE—TRACE CALL to beat MR. JOE here. Both are in top condition and ready to put up real races. POMPOLEON'S chances will be better if the track is off.

SEVENTH RACE—What SANDWRACK can't do to this field is nobody's business. Of course, we must be sure that everything is set. As usual, that is the tough assignment. ANNIMESSIC is sharp as a tack and must be considered. GRAND PRINCE to show.

EIGHTH RACE—ESKIMO, LA-SALLE and PORTMANTEAU is the way I like them in the final. Every man to his own guess.

Teams Tied in Sixth.

Hyattsville All-Stars and the Rockville A. A. battled to a 5-to-5 tie in a game stopped in the sixth inning by rain yesterday on the Riverdale field.

Bill Heany, who had won five straight games, was nicked for five runs by Rockville in the first inning, but George Brandt, University of North Carolina athlete, who replaced him at the start of the third, yielded only one hit and struck out six.

Heights Team Nosed Out, 3 to 2

ONLY two games were played in the unlimited division of the Capital City League yesterday, but one of them culminated in victory for the leading Dor-A nine, its fifth consecutive win of the campaign. Congress Heights was the loser by a rally in the ninth inning that produced all of Dor-A's three runs and its 3-2 margin of victory. The Stantons continued close on the heels of the leaders by walloping the Federals for an 11-0 victory.

Although Arlie Long gave up only four hits, Congress Heights entered the final frame on the long end of a 2-0 score and apparently with the situation well in hand. But the gallant suburbanites were not to be denied. They fought back with all the skill and determination of real champions to stave off defeat.

Hamel Starts Rally.

Hamel opened the ninth with his second hit of the fray, a clean single to left field, and Dor-A hopes soared only to drop again when Keyser flied out to V. Wahler in right field, and Long followed suit, with Sweeney taking the hit in center field.

Shorty Chumbris revived the waning courage of his mates by beating out a bunt, Hamel going to third on the play, and scoring a moment later when Bryant singled to center. With Chumbris perched on third and Bryant temporarily pulled up at second, Bartoo came through with the game-winning hit, a sharp blow to center field.

Long was another Walter Johnson as he fired the ball past the Congress Heights batters in the last half of the ninth. He retired the side in order, preserving Dor-A's clean slate and strengthening its grip on first place.

Stantons Busy at Bat.

The Stantons simply leveled their heavy artillery at the tottering Federal defense and blared away with a fancy assortment of base hits that soon had the opposition on the run. Every member of the winning team, with the exception of Eddie Fitzpatrick, got at least one hit. "Fitz" simply was too tired to run around the bases.

Willis Fisher and "Gook" Taylor led the attack. Ray Davidson silenced the Federals with a three-hit performance. His mates collected a total of fourteen off Elmer Wesley.

The Wilmer Reaches Hampton Club Basin

Hampton, Va., July 2 (A.P.).—Ploughing through a choppy sea before a stiff southeast wind, the Wilmer, owned by Dr. Cecil Bagley, commodore of the Chesapeake and Potomac section of the A. P. A., put into the Hampton Yacht Club anchorage basin this afternoon at 3:50 o'clock to take first honors in the Baltimore-Hampton cruiser race, the preregatta feature of the sixth annual Hampton Yacht Club regatta.

The Wilmer weathered a southeaster that forced 14 other participants in the race to put into Solomons Island until tomorrow. Dr. Bagley's trophy winner made the run from Smiths Point to Hampton Yacht Club in 5 hours and 11 minutes. A handsome trophy cup donated by the Hampton Yacht Club to the winner of the race sponsored by the Chesapeake and Potomac section of the American Power Boat Association, will be presented Dr. Bagley Tuesday.

Ray Steele Out To Win Over Jim Londos

Mat Champion, Worn Out, Faces Test Thursday at Ball Park.

THE novelty of seeing Jimmy Londos working against, probably his most dreaded opponent, will be the magnet drawing 'em to the rassle classic at Griffith Stadium Thursday night.

In other words, many mat followers are sold on the idea that the gorgeous Greek's Thursday night opponent, Ray Steele, may upset Londos.

Having twice held Londos to draws—once in a two-hour stand-off, and again gaining a fall apiece—Steele is considered particularly dangerous at this time.

Steele at Top Form.

Although Ray unquestionably is refreshed, following a long rest, Londos appears worn out following the grind of his championship defense. Whereas, George Zaharias banged Jim around virtually as he pleased here recently, Steele flashed phenomenal form last week, absorbing all the man-size jolts delivered him by Gino Garibaldi, and coming back strong to win decisively.

In the semifinal, Rudy Dusek stacks up against another grand worker in Abe Coleman in an act that promises much.

Front Royal, Va., July 2.—The Gichner Red Sox, of Washington, D. C., shut out the Front Royal All Stars here this afternoon, 3 to 0. Lefty Brown held the locals to four hits, scattered over as many innings. The Sox got nine hits off Weaver, but were able to score in only two innings, the second and fifth. Sahn and Bowie, with two hits each, were the only batters to get more than one hit. Double plays by the rival infields killed several scoring chances. The All Stars face the French A. Morgan Released By Cleveland Club

Sent to New Orleans Team; Craghead Is Traded for Pearson.

Cleveland, July 2 (A.P.).—Eddie Morgan, relief first baseman for the Cleveland Indians, was released outright today to the New Orleans club, of the Southern Association, and Pitcher Howard Craghead was sent to Toledo, of the American Association, in return for Monte Pearson.

Morgan was acquired by the Indians in 1928 from New Orleans and converted from an outfielder into a first baseman. In 1930 he blasted out 26 home runs and the following year he was third in the batting roster of the American League with a mark of .351.

This year he slumped badly and Harley Boss supplanted him as a regular.

Double Bill Split On No Hit, 1 Hit

Colmar Manor Loses First by 11 to 0; Wins Second From Wreco, 2 to 1.

Colmar Manor divided a double-header with the Washington Railway & Electric Co. nine yesterday, losing the first game, 11 to 0, when Pitcher Varnell set them down without getting a hit, while his mates were slugging Whitt and Wessbury for 21 safeties.

Higgs twirled for Colmar Manor in the nightcap and almost succeeded in erasing the blot on the name of his team by holding Wreco to one-hit, winning by a 2 to 1 margin. The second game was called in the sixth inning.

C. & P. Nine Beaten By Quantico Indians

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., July 2.—The Quantico Indian baseball players had on their war paint, feathers and all the trimmings here today and walloped the C. & P. tossers, of Washington, 15 to 8.

The Indians made several errors that allowed most of the visitors' runs. The home boys collected three home runs, three triples and several doubles, while the visitors could do little with the offerings of Couch and Brown for the home team. The Indians play two games with Warsaw, at Warsaw, July 4.

WASHINGTON A. C. WINS.

With Dodson holding the opposition to three hits, the Washington A. C. experienced little difficulty in chalking up a 13-3 victory over the Stansburys yesterday.

Hiser's All-Stars tied Rockville at 5-5 in a game halted by rain yesterday. George Brandt held Rockville scoreless after it had scored all of its runs off Heany.

Goodacre Loses To Clarendon In Upset, 6-4

Georgia Avenue Shuts Out Rinaldi as Minoux Gives but One Hit.

CLARENDON JUNIORS inaugurated the second half campaign of the Capital City League race in typical Fourth of July fashion yesterday, setting off the fireworks under Goodacre's to win a 6-4 decision. The victory stunned followers of the league who had expected the winners of the first half race to win handily over their opponents. Georgia Avenue Business Men shut out Rinaldi Coal Co., 5-0, in the only other game played.

Goodacre's was unable to fathom the offerings of Claude Cowan, former Central High School twirler, and Brooks, who served them up for the Virginians, and was held to seven safeties. Clarendon, however, took great delight in hammering Cecil Hale for 14 bingles. Wilson and Copland led the winning attack while Bryant and Cullen were best for the losers.

Gives Only One Hit.

Minoux's clever hurling, coupled with some timely slugging by Carlton Giovanetti, helped the Business Men to their win over Rinaldi. Although it was Minoux's first start on the mound this season he held the opposition to one hit, while his mates pounded McDonald for eight.

RALLIES in the latter stages of their games enabled the Washington Maid and Eastern A. C. teams to win yesterday in the midget division of the Capital City League and tie for the league lead. A three-run uprising in the tenth frame gave the Maids a 6-3 decision over Potomac Fish Co., while the Easterners rallied to score five runs in the eighth inning and win, 7-4, over the Montrose A. C. Corbett tossers succumbed to the Savoy A. C., 8-5, in the third game played when the latter tallied seven runs in the final inning.

Montrose's defeat knocked it out of a triple tie for the lead. Burke's home run and Minkoff's hitting in the pinches featured the Eastern triumph. Coakley's splendid pitching accounted for Washington Maids' win. He granted nine hits but was miserly with safeties with men on base. Dawson, Pistolas and Chumas played important roles in the game-winning assault on Gray in the extra inning.

Bad Fielding Costly.

Erlich, Baker and Bailey led the Savoy attack, while Taylor and Kidwell were best for Corbett. Wobbly fielding in the fatal ninth inning cost the Lincoln Park aggregation the game.

Fight on Graft In Public Work Assured Nation

Ickes Says Extravagance in Relief Program Will Not Be Tolerated.

Extravagance will not be tolerated and every effort will be made to guard against corruption and graft in the Government's $3,300,000,000 public works program soon to be inaugurated, Secretary of the Interior Ickes pledged in a radio address last night.

Secretary Ickes is chairman of the Cabinet board which will supervise the vast program to promote economic recovery.

"The administration realizes that it would be improper for it to allow the money of the people to be expended recklessly and extravagantly," he said, "merely on the plea that it was being spent to make work. The more money that is wasted the less there will be to spend on labor. Our concern is the employment of as much labor as possible within the limits of the appropriation of Congress.

"To protect the interests of labor we will do everything possible to hold contractors down to a legitimate profit. We will seek to safeguard all public works undertaken by us from corruption or graft. We will see to it that works are carefully inspected during their progress so that the taxpayers * * * may be assured that every dollar spent represents a dollar of value."

Secretary Ickes' colleagues on the cabinet board yesterday denied reports of differences among them which might necessitate an appeal to the President. They also scoffed at a report that, in order to rush distribution of funds, the terms by which every project must have secure financial backing might be made less rigorous.

"The bill setting up the public works fund specifies the financing must be adequate," said Rexford G. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, representing Secretary Wallace.

Cautious distribution and release of funds has been advocated by Lewis Douglas, budget director, on the ground that the building outlay could best be utilized to maintain rising prices.

Man Kills Self With Revolver Thought Stolen

Pistol Recently Missed by Father Is Discovered Beside Son's Body.

The father of Clyde W. Marsh, 28, of 126 E street northwest, yesterday found the .38-caliber pistol he had thought stolen several weeks ago. It was lying beside the body of his son, one shot from its five chambers having pierced the man's temple, killing him.

The tragedy, in which Coroner A Magruder MacDonald has issued a suicide certificate, was not discovered until noon yesterday when passersby saw Marsh's body slumped against a fence around a vacant lot on Constitution avenue northwest between Four and one-half and Sixth streets.

Police found the gun a few inches from Marsh's right hand. The bullet was found a few feet on the other side of the body. It had coursed directly through the man's head. Rigor mortis had set in when police examined the body. Coroner MacDonald estimated the shooting had taken place 12 hours before.

Marsh was learned to have been gloomy of late. A note addressed to a young woman acquaintance was found in his belongings. It told her "not to be discouraged at my actions," and ended with "God bless you, I love you." The woman's name, police said, was Dorothy Welborne, of the E street address, which is a rooming house. Marsh said in the note that Miss Welborne should give his clothes to her younger brother.

The father of the dead man had missed the weapon several weeks ago and believed at that time it was stolen.

Scout Hobby Exhibits Will Open in October

Scouts from the Fourth Division Troops of the District of Columbia Council, those in the general region of Mount Pleasant and Columbia Heights, will participate in a series of hobby exhibits next fall and spring, according to an announcement from Harry L. Watson, who will be director of the exposition.

The contests for October will consist of a nut collection and a leaf display; the November entries will consist of pioneer models, aviation models and ship models; photography, bookbinding and stamp collection will feature the December exhibits. Scouts will enter display in art, architecture and sculpturing in January; knot boards, basketry and pottery in February; leathercraft, metal work and electricity in March, and woodwork and woodcarving in April. The grand exposition will be held on May 1, 1934, and the grand award will consist of one week at Camp Roosevelt.

Girl Safely Asleep WhileBeing Sought

Worried and rain-drenched, a party of relatives and neighbors searched throughout the height of yesterday's downpour for Loraine Diegelman, 2½ years old.

She had been missing from her home for a half hour before the storm.

Soon police joined the quest, and the alleys and yards in the vicinity were combed for the child.

Four hours later Loraine rubbed her eyes after a good rest behind an overstuffed chair in her home, 900 Hamlin street northeast. Then she toddled out to the rest of the family, still unaware of the drenchings and the worry she had caused.

Workers and Farmers To Stage Sylvan Fete

The "New Declaration of Independence," will be read by Henry W. Sutton, representing the Progressive Party. Other speakers will represent the Veteran's National Rank and File; the Socialist Party, and other radical and liberal organizations.

Federation Will Hear Of Petition to Utility

The meeting of the Arlington County Civic Federation scheduled for tomorrow night at the Lyon Park Community House will be held Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

A report will be received from the special committee headed by L. C. McNemar, in charge of circulating petition requesting the Potomac Electric Light & Power Co., to extend its lines throughout Arlington County.

Missing Clothes Belie Hints of River Suicide

Police Still Seeking W. E. Aiken as Wife Reports Articles Gone.

Theories of Arlington County and Washington police that Wilfred E. Aiken, 31-year-old building association teller, did not take his life by drowning in the Potomac early Saturday, were intensified yesterday.

The missing man's wife, Mrs. Helen Aiken, 6306 Eighth street northwest, informed Detective Sergt. Clyde N. Strange yesterday that her husband's shaving gear was missing in addition to a gray suit, several shirts and a valise not accounted for.

Vernon Wilt, Arlington County policeman, has learned that Aiken's sedan was at the spot where it was abandoned as early as midnight Friday night. An hour later he was seen near it by campers in the summer colony a quarter mile above Key Bridge on the Virginia side of the river.

Another factor puzzling police and members of Aiken's family is that a younger brother, Gordon, also has not been heard from since Friday evening. Both are waiting until Wednesday to see if the youth has gone off on a holiday trip.

Officials of the Perpetual Building Association where Aiken is employed declare that the young man's accounts are in good order.

Aiken's sedan came under police scrutiny Saturday noon after campers had noticed its haphazard parking and decided to investigate A note, addressed to his wife, was found in the car, as were the keys to the machine. A blue suit, sport shoes and necktie were found in the machine. The note indicated suicidal intent.

Pattern Makers Will Offer Code

In a code of work and fair competition which the Pattern Makers and Production Men's Association of Greater New York, Inc., will submit to the National Recovery Administration today, 2,000 men, producers of garment patterns, seek these three reforms:

Standardization of measurements in all women's garments, so that clothing when purchased may be depended upon by the shopper to measure exactly what it is labeled. A work-week of 36 hours, consisting of five days. Abolition of the pirating of patterns.

The second and third reforms, it is claimed, would give year-long employment to all the 8,000 members of their group in the United States, whereas, under prevalent conditions, many of them have no work at all and most of them are employed, at best, only seven months out of twelve.

Pigeons Loot

A squad of six policemen last night ascended to the roof of 307 Ninth street northwest, where neighbors reported seeing a prowler. They returned to the street a few moments with two youngsters, 16 and 14, and a burlap sack containing 40 homing pigeons.

Atop the roof, the police reported, was a pigeon loft. The two youths, Marshall Long, 16, of 925 G street southwest, and Claude Randall, 14, of 807 Seventh street southwest, were found filling the sack with pigeons, they said.

At the First Precinct station, the boys said the pigeons were to be entered in a race. The boys were sent to the receiving home.

Boy Purse Snatcher Woman Loses $2.50

A pocketbook, containing $2.50, was snatched yesterday from Mrs. Fletcher M. Howell, 239 Elm street northwest, as she was walking near New Jersey and Rhode Island avenues northwest.

Soul of Nation Held Menaced By Patronage

Pastor Says Danger Lies in Discard of Merit and Manhood.

"We shall lose the soul of America if we resort to patronage and favor and throw to the winds merit and manhood," the Rev. John J. Queally, rector of the Church of the Transfiguration, declared in his sermon yesterday.

"A nation, a people who have enjoyed the heights of prosperity and freedom, that have been blessed with every conceivable material comfort, that have been buoyed by a spirit of the most divine-like Democracy the world has ever known, can not have peace again if confidence be lost. The man or woman who has been baptized in the Christian faith, who has once tasted the joys and values of the love of God, can not have peace again when that faith is lost," he said.

Mr. Queally took his text from the first verse of the fifteenth chapter of Luke, "Rejoice with me for I have found that which I have lost." He said, in part:

"He who lives without any respect for God or man is as defenseless and hopeless as a sheep that is lost. He is just living at random. The love of God is always trying to guide him back to reason, and when he sees the real meaning of life through the light of God then there is rejoicing in heaven and earth.

Lincoln Discerned Need.

"Jesus is the Good Shepherd. He is always telling us we can not wander away from God and be happy. We lose a great treasure when we lose faith, reverence and respect. We become puzzled, bewildered and defenseless, as a lost sheep. 'I have been driven many times to my knees,' said President Lincoln, 'by the overwhelming conviction that I had nowhere else to go. My own wisdom and that of all around me seemed insufficient for the day.' Surely if such a great leader felt insufficient without Divine guidance, how much more the ordinary American man.

"If religion did nothing else but keep this thought alive in men it would do a great deal.

"'What is there in religion?' said a young university student to several of his companions while rowing on the Potomac. 'What is there in this river?' replied his friend. 'At least it cleanses, refreshes; it gives buoyancy, beauty, fertility and help to all who seek it.' Faith in God removes a great deal of poison out of life.

Losses During Prosperity.

"During prosperity we were apt to lose some of our most beautiful treasures. We lost a sense of true values. We lost the reality of spiritual things. We lost reverence. 'I have in my heart,' said Oliver Wendell Holmes, 'a small, shy plant called reverence. I cultivate that on Sunday morning.'

"We have lost much of our fraternal spirit and we are inclined to cherish grudges. 'No man resolved to make the most of himself can spare time for personal contentions,' replied Lincoln to some of his quarrelsome followers.

"But most of all we have lost something out of our national ideals. This country won her independence and freedom by sacrifice; founded her happiness and contentment by justice.

"Have you lost your faith in your fellow man? Lost your love for God? Lost your confidence in your country? Search diligently and find it and then will be peace in your heart, happiness in your home and joy in the presence of the angels of God."

Chicago Planning Airport Near Loop

Chicago, July 2 (A.P.).—The Nation's second city planned today to be the first to have a giant airport on the fringe of its business district accessible within five or ten minutes to the heart of the loop.

Elaborate Fireworks Will Be Climax to Exercises at Monument.

Today the city is making its final plans for tomorrow's festive and oratorical observance of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Judge Robert E. Mattingly will read the Declaration of Independence, and Miss Grace Colliflower, schoolgirl orator, will deliver a short address on "Thomas Jefferson, Father of Constitutional Democracy."

The Marine Band will render patriotic selections and Victory Post, American Legion, Bugle and Drum Corps will also participate. Groups taking part will gather at the scene tonight to rehearse.

Police Seeking 'Miss Dugan' to Explain Assault

Companion Named by Victim in Park Beating Denies Presence.

Solution of the Mahan attack mystery hinges on the success of the search for the elusive Miss Charlotte Dugan, police said last night.

Miss Dugan was said to have been with Miss Helen Victoria Mahan, 33, of 2002 P street northwest, shortly before she was brutally beaten in Rock Creek Park Saturday afternoon.

From her bed in Georgetown University Hospital, Miss Mahan told police she had been attacked by a colored man. However, a few hours later, police uncovered information sufficient to send out an incidental report calling for the arrest of a white man.

Then, to add to the conflicting situation, a Miss Julia Dugan, whom Miss Mahan had said was with her, denied any knowledge of the affair.

Informed at the hospital of this development, Miss Mahan said that she had been with a Miss Charlotte Dugan, but that she did not know where she lived.

Miss Mahan, through her mother, Mrs. F. G. Mahan, vehemently denied that she had been with a white man shortly before the attack near the Q street bridge. This was reported to police by a passerby, whose name is being withheld.

Miss Mahan, whose condition is still serious, although slightly improved, said she met Miss Dugan at Dupont Circle and that they walked into the park.

While sitting under a tree Miss Dugan excused herself to make a telephone call, Miss Mahan said. Shortly after, she was approached by a man whom she thought colored. The man, she said, came up to her and pulled her to her feet. A struggle ensued and Miss Mahan asked the man to sit down, hoping her friend would return.

The man began beating her and from that point Miss Mahan said she remembered nothing. She was discovered wandering near the edge of the park in a dazed condition. She was taken to the hospital by a passerby, where her wounds were said to be a fractured skull, a dislocated arm and several fractured fingers.

Police found the scene of the struggle splattered with blood and a bloody path leading to where the assailant had dragged the body.

Miss Mahan's empty purse and hat were found near the scene, but police discarded the robbery theory when it was learned she carried little money with her.

Marsh had been located with the corps camp near Olney.

Jobs-Giving Boom Is Seen This Week

Farley Completes List of 1,000 Appointees for Federal Posts.

(Associated Press.)

The tide of Democratic job-giving will swell within a day or two, as President Roosevelt returns to a White House desk piled with recommendations from his aids.

Postmaster General Farley, the chief patronage dispenser, has completed a list of about 1,000 new appointees for jobs ranging from postmasters to United States attorneys. Others will be lined up for the Chief Executive within a short time, but all the jobs won't be filled for months yet.

Thousands of new positions are opening up under the new emergency legislation, such as the public works administration and the Home Loan Bank Board, but just how many jobs there will be no one has any definite idea. Farley, himself, made a guess at between 25,000 and 30,000.

Bishop Freeman Asks Raising of Moral Code

Tells Congregation That Action Is Most Needed to End Depression.

Return to a normal standard of morals is the thing most needed to bring this country and the rest of the world out of the depression, Bishop James E. Freeman yesterday told a vesper congregation in an Independence Day sermon in the Great Choir at National Cathedral.

Taking as his text St. Paul's words in the twenty-seventh chapter of the Acts of the Apostles: "Except these abide by the ship, ye can not be saved," Bishop Freeman praised the leadership and courage of President Roosevelt.

"One thing for which the President must be commended is his unperturbable calm in the face of emergency, which marks him as a true leader," Bishop Freeman declared.

Quotes Alfred Smith.

"We agree with the majority of statesman representing us at the great Economic Conference at London that we must enter into no entangling alliances. The way out of the situation lies in setting our own house in order first," he said.

In connection with his plea for an improvement of moral standards, the Bishop quoted "that great and courageous statesman, my good friend the former Governor of New York, Al Smith."

The quotation was from a recent magazine article by Mr. Smith, in which he said, "It is only by raising the standard of human character throughout the world that the present situation can be permanently improved."

Asks Unified Action.

"The real job now is for the priests and physicians and not the statesmen," the quotation added.

Bishop Freeman pointed out that the analogy between St. Paul's plea to the members of the sinking ship's crew and passengers and the present necessity for cooperation among all classes to bring the Ship of State safely into port.

"For four years a great Nation, along with the rest of the world, has been increasingly embarrassed," he said. "Let us all resolve this eve of another anniversary of our country's natal day to examine and improve our own indvidual characters as our personal contribution to the general raising of moral standards, that fundamentally necessary step toward economic recovery."

Northeast Section Plans Celebration

Citizens Association Will Observe Fourth of July at Taft Center.

Youngsters of the upper northeast residential section were cheered yesterday with decision of a group of members of the Burroughs Citizens Association to hold a Fourth of July celebration, after earlier deciding not to do so.

The celebration will be held on the Taft Recreation Center grounds, Twentieth street and South Dakota avenue northeast. A boys' double-header baseball contest will be held in the morning and a men's double-header in the afternoon.

Between the ball games an athletic carnival will be held, with events for all and prizes donated by business men of the vicinity. A picnic supper and a concert by the East Gate Community Center Band will end the day.

Wilmington, Del., July 2 (A.P.).—Frank Shemanski, 48, whose address is unknown, was found dead at the foot of a stairway in the home of Michael Dymoski today.

Dymoski, his wife, Annie, and son, Alfred, 11, were held as witnesses in an effort to clear up the case. Police said the man had been beaten over the head with a blunt instrument.

Radio System Aids "Blind" Landings

U. S. Officials Will Witness Aircraft Demonstration Today at Newark.

Ewing Y. Mitchell, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, with members of his staff, will fly to Newark, N. J., today to take part in a demonstration of blind landing of aircraft by use of radio.

Pilots George E. Gardner and E. A. Cutrell will demonstrate the equipment. They will be accompanied on some of their "blind" landings by officials of the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce. These will include James C. Edgerton, executive assistant to the Assistant Secretary; Eugene L. Vidal, in charge of air regulations; Rex Martin, in charge of airways, and Maj. J. Carroll Cone, in charge of aeronautic development. If official business will permit, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper will witness the demonstrations.

The blind landing system, hailed as one of the most important aids to flying developed in the last decade, has been installed at Newark Airport for service tests.

BISHOP FREEMAN.

Minister Cites Nationalism as World Menace

"The present struggle in which the dry forces find themselves engaged sows the result of failure to keep up the educational processes among the youth of the Nation against the evil of strong drink," declared Dr. Robert M. Hopkins, secretary of the World Sunday School Association, preaching yesterday at the Columbia Heights Christian Church.

"Another generation of education will be required before the ground lost since the writing in of the prohibition amendment is gained back," he went on.

Dr. Hopkins filled the pulpit at the Columbia Heights Church as the guest of his friend, Dr. Harvey Baker Smith, pastor.

Dr. Hopkins took as his text a phrase in the last part of the sixteenth chapter of John, "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." "The word 'world,'" Dr. Hopkins said, "is distinctly a New Testament word, and Jesus had no less compass in his mind than the world at large when he uttered those words. Christian people need never apologize for their consideration of the world at large as their field."

Three chief problems face the Christian world today, according to Dr. Hopkins, who said in part:

"The first and most obvious of these is nationalism. Never has there been such emphasis on this factor. The pendulum has swung from the alliance of nations due to the war back to strong nationalistic feelings."

Communism Growth Cited.

"Communism is the most active missionary force in the world today," he went on. "In a nation of 450,000,000 Chinese, where Christian forces have been active for 100 years, the most optimistic count gives 450,000 converts to Christianity. In less than a score of years Communism has reached among the youth of China 80,000,000.

"Secularism is insinuating its materialistic philosophy into the heart of all organized religions, bringing them all into question in the most subtle fashion. Christianity must face this materialism.

"If Christ could speak now, would he say, 'I have overcome the world?'"

Dr. Hopkins said that three impressions gave him cheer, and strength and faith. Concerning this he said:

"The first of these is that there is a growing conviction that Christianity is a world religion. It is impossible to travel without seeing this. In Japan, the most virile movement in the world today thrives, the 'kingdom of God' movement, purely Japanese in origin.

Movements of Christianity.

"China has the five-year movement, built by Chinese minds, through love of Christ. In Greece, the 'Zoe' or life movement is putting new life and strength into the Orthodox Greek Church, so that in these days of depression, that church has treasuries filled to overflowing, and the church reaches out into newer fields of usefulness. Christianity is a world religion, taking expression in an indigenous fashion all over the world."

Dr. Hopkins' second encouraging observation was the refreshing renewal of Christian leaders. Little, invalid Kagawa, in Japan, reaches more people in a vital Christian way through his writing than the entire Japanese army can reach with weapons of warfare. Chang, in China; Trembelia, in the Greek Church; Camargo, in Mexico; 'all over our own land, quiet, unassuming men are preaching and leading through the simple Christian teachings.

"The third point of cheer is the increased emphasis on Christian education. Ministers and teachers are deserting oratory for plain gospel teachings, that mold lives," Dr. Hopkins concluded.

Catastrophe

Boston Terrier Meets It in Form of Ferocious Alley Animal.

Mrs. Marjorie Wilkins, a visitor from New York City, took her Boston terrier for an airing yesterday afternoon. They strolled past Sixth and H streets northwest. The dog, taken suddenly unawares, found himself tangled in combat with a large black cat, which, Mrs. Wilkins said, was the attacker.

The battle raged. Mrs. Wilkins was shocked. She reached for her pet, but drew back with a cry of pain. Later, after the fight ended, police were told the cat bit Mrs. Wilkins on the finger. She was given first-aid treatment—and so was the pup.

The Bible conference, headed by Page McK. Etchison, president, will continue through Tuesday. One of the principal speakers will be Dr. William S. Abernathy, of the Calvary Baptist Church.

Among the other speakers taking part in the series of conferences are Dr. Harvey Baker Smith, Columbia Heights Christian Church; Dr. Frank S. Niles, Georgetown Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Robert Simmons, Westminster Presbyterian Church of Washington, and the Rev. P. G. Murray, assistant pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church.

Finder of Drowned Man Will Get $25

Fairfax Sheriff Is Offering Reward for Body of Norman Derr.

Sheriff E. P. Kirby, of Fairfax County, last night announced a $25 reward to be paid the finder of the body of Norman Derr, 21-year-old Fairfax, Va., bridegroom, who was drowned Saturday while swimming in the Potomac River near Great Falls, Va.

Citizens of Fairfax, under Sheriff Kirby's direction, dragged the river in the vicinity of the drowning until midnight Saturday and all day yesterday, until driven to cover by heavy rains, without locating the young man's body. Three charges of dynamite also were used in the attempt to make the river yield its victim. The aid of Montgomery County, Md., police also has been enlisted in the body hunt.

Young Derr was the son of H. B. Derr, Fairfax County agricultural agent. Besides his parents and widow, he is survived by a sister, Grace. Derr, apparently overcome by cramps, was drowned without raising an outcry while swimming at the mouth of Difficult Run with O'Neal Sutphin, 21, also of Fairfax.

A delegation of Czechoslovak Sokols, members of national gymnastic societies, arrived in Washington yesterday and are to be followed this morning by the remainder of the group, which has been attending the congress of the American-Czechoslovak Sokol societies in Chicago. They will be received by Marvin H. McIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt, to whom they will present a memorial book of the Ninth Sokol Congress in Prague in 1932.

Ferdinand Veverka, Czechoslovak Minister, will entertain the group today at luncheon at the legation following placing of a wreath on the Unknown Soldier's Tomb in Arlington.

During the party's stay here Alexander Broz, secretary of the legation, has been acting as guide. It will leave tonight for New York, thence returning to their native land.
